Alexander Haig: Three meetings Friday

Argentina thwarts Haig

By United Press International

Secretary of State Alexander Haig hit some snags Friday in talks with Argentine officials.

Diplomats in Buenos Aires earlier had said an "optimistic mood" surrounded six hours of talks Haig held in his search of a peaceful solution to the dispute with Britain over the Falklands Islands.

Haig held three separate meetings with Foreign Minister Nicanor Costa Mendez, President Leopoldo Galtieri and again with Costa Mendez.

After his second meeting with Haig, Costa Mendez went to the government house to brief Galtieri and his military junta. Costa Mendez then went back to Haig's hotel for a brief meeting with the secretary of state.

State Department spokesman Dean Fischer called a late evening news conference to discuss Haig's second round of talks in Argentina in less than a week after making stops in London and Washington.

Diplomatic sources said the two sides had discussed implementing U.N. Security Council resolution 502 to suspend hostilities while negotiations are conducted over the Falklands dispute.

That apparently would force Britain to halt its armada, which for nearly 11 days has been sailing to the South Atlantic.

The sources said Argentina was creating problems for Haig's mission by insisting on maintaining control of the islands. Britain has demanded sovereignty and an immediate Argentine troop withdrawal from the islands.

Earlier, Haig delivered a personal note from President Reagan who said in Washington Argentina had promised to resolve the crisis based on the Council resolution, passed April 3.

He said Galtieri called him Thursday and "expressed over and over his desire for a peaceful solution."

ABC News said Friday Argentina gave Haig a proposal under which it would gain sovereignty of the Falklands by Dec. 31, 1982, withdrawing its troops within 15 days if the British fleet moves 3,000 miles from the islands.

The proposal requires Argentine administration of the islands and half of executive and legislative committees to be Argentine delegates, ABC said, with the United States guaranteeing the agreement be carried out.

The new initiative came as Britain's cabinet went on a war footing and planned for a drawn-out blockade of the Falkland Islands if mediation fails.

In Ushuala, 2,223 miles south of the capital, military sources said three British reporters were arrested for "spying" on an Argentine air base.

In London, an exiled British official of the Falkland Islands said Argentine troops were begging the 1,800 islanders for food and killing sheep to feed themselves.

A 40-ship British war fleet reportedly neared Ascension Island, the midway refueling point in its 8,000-mile voyage to the South Atlantic islands. The Defense Ministry declined comment on the fleet's whereabouts.

A one-month ban on all Argentine imports went into effect in the 10 Common Market nations.

The National Security Council in Washington held an urgent meeting.

The U.N. Security Council resolution Reagan referred to called for an end to hostilities, the withdrawal of Argentine troops from the Falklands and negotiations to settle the dispute.

Reagans' tax bill totals $165,000

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan and his wife Nancy will get $14 back from the federal government this year.

The White House said Friday the couple overpaid their income tax for 1981.

The Reagans paid taxes of $165,305 on an adjusted gross income of $412,730 for the year.

Among deductions claimed by the Reagans were moving expenses of $6,096 for their change of residence from California to the White House.

The tax return was prepared by Reagan's accountant, Roy D. Miller of Los Angeles, and made public by the White House.

Filed April 12, three days before the deadline, it lists his occupation as "U.S. President" and hers as "First Lady." Being 71 years of age qualified Reagan for the extra personal exemption for those over 65.

The return listed their wages as $193,776 — with the U.S. government paying $189,167. Another $2,509 was received for a television appearance, $1,500 for reuse of the same taped appearance, and $600 for an appearance by Mrs. Reagan on the Mike Douglas television show, the return said.

The president's annual salary is actually $200,000, but he did not claim the entire amount because he was not sworn in until Jan. 20.

Income on interest and dividends added another $157,136, and an additional $42,635 was earned from fees due on past writing, past acting and other appearances. The bulk of the latter figure was accounted for by a $41,913 advance received by Mrs. Reagan for a book, including $3,500 for rights to publish the book in Japan.

Reagan received $22,197 as a pension.

The president listed $11,895 worth of deductions for contributions to organizations and charities, a subject for which he has come under fire during his first year in office. A total of $5,965 was listed for cash contributions. A spokesman said no breakdown was necessary as long as the canceled checks were maintained as proof.

Of the non-cash contributions, two dresses were listed as deductions on Jan. 5, 1981, before the president was inaugurated. One, worth $4,180, was given to the Fashion Institute of Design and Merchandising Museum; the other, worth $1,750, went to the Los Angeles County Museum of Art, the return said.

The president paid union dues of $66 and claimed an additional $25,648 in other miscellaneous deducations.

He paid state and local income taxes of $33,438, real estate taxes of $5,064, general sales taxes of $608 and personal property taxes of $75.

The return said $65,305 was withheld in federal income taxes, and another $100,000 was either paid in advance as estimated tax or brought forward from last year's return.

The Reagans requested that this year's $14 overpayment be applied to their 1982 tax return.

The president conducted a full day of activities Friday, ranging from a meeting of the National Security Council to an afternoon reception for several hundred other Republicans with big income tax returns.

Reagan also signed a proclamation declaring May 1 to be Law Day U.S.A.

Defendant's remarks after sentencing cost him five years

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Tony Kuntz was outraged with Judge Theron Ward's decision to confine him for four months in a correctional facility.

The 19-year-old Wendell man left little doubt about his feelings, making threats against both Ward and Prosecutor Harry DeHaan following a Fifth District Court hearing Friday.

But Kuntz's problems were just beginning.

Those ill-chosen remarks were presented to Ward within 20 minutes, and by the end of the day, Kuntz began serving a five-year sentence in the state penitentiary at Boise.

Kuntz's case began as a routine sentencing hearing. He pleaded guilty last month to malicious destruction of property, after he drove a vehicle through the front doors and containing wall of the Mennonite Church, located west of Buhl, on Jan. 31.

Friday, defense lawyer Mike Walz requested probation for Kuntz. Since Kuntz's arrest, he had spent 75 days in the county jail, Walz said. As such, the defendant had been punished, he said, and if he was placed on probation, Kuntz could earn the money to reimburse the church for damages.

DeHaan followed the recommendation of the Idaho Division of Probation and Parole in asking that Kuntz be ordered to spend 120 days at the North Idaho Correctional Institute in Cottonwood.

The prosecutor described the defendant as a high-school dropout with a serious drug and alcohol problem. Kuntz was beginning to exhibit criminal tendencies that could lead to more serious problems if not curbed through a structured rehabilitation program, DeHaan said.

Ward said he was inclined to agree and retained jurisdiction in the case. By doing so, the judge would have had the option of placing Kuntz on probation at the end of the four-month term.

But Kuntz was unhappy with the prospect of four more months in confinement. Once outside the courtroom, he threatened to "burn DeHaan's house down and get Ward."

Deputy Mike Shelton prepared an affidavit to that effect, and Kuntz was back in court, explaining to Ward that he didn't "mean anything" by the statement.

DeHaan suggested that at the least, NICI officials should be notified of the statements, and at the most, Ward should reconsider his decision to send Kuntz to NICI.

Deputy public defender Mike Powers, who represented Kuntz in the second court hearing when Walz could not be located, said that the statements were made in a "fit of anger."

But Ward said the statements revealed that Kuntz had a poor attitude.

"He won't cooperate with Cottonwood staff or anyone else," Ward said. He ordered Kuntz sent to prison for up to five years. Kuntz was transported to Boise later in the day.

Ward's decision led one lawyer, who asked not to be identified, to comment, "Sticks and stones may break my bones, but words will get you five years."

But the case may not be over yet. Contacted later, Walz said he was studying options in the case.

While he was "shocked by my client's behavior," Walz said it is not uncommon for newly sentenced criminals to become upset.

Trial set for Georgia man suspected of moving aliens

BOISE (UPI) — A Georgia man pleaded innocent Friday to three counts of transporting illegal aliens from Arizona to Magic Valley.

James Ronald Williams, 35, will go on trial June 1 on the felony charges, which stem from his arrest March 16 at Hollister by U.S. Border Patrol agents.

The U.S. marshal's office in Boise said Williams also is wanted by Kentucky authorities for allegedly violating the conditions of his parole on armed robbery, vehicle theft and escape convictions.

Williams, from Lions, Ga., was returned to the Ada County Jail, where he has been held since his arrest, officials said. Bond originally was set at $15,000, but U.S. District Judge Harold Ryan reduced it to $1,500 Friday.

The federal indictment against Williams alleges that he drove at least three Mexican nationals to the Hollister area from Nogales, Ariz., March 13.

Two of the aliens were turned over to the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service for return to Mexico, while the third is being held in Idaho to appear as a material witness in the Williams trial.

An arrest warrant obtained from a federal magistrate by the Border Patrol office in Twin Falls said Williams allegedly drove 14 illegal aliens to Idaho in a pickup truck with Arizona license plates.

If convicted on all three counts against him, Williams could receive a maximum 15-year prison sentence and $6,000 in fines.

Williams' arrest followed by less than a year the indictment of nine southern Idaho farmers on charges of transporting illegal aliens from the Southwest to Idaho.

The farmers' case flared into a controversy pitting the U.S. Immigration Service, which said it was cracking down on the flow of illegal aliens into the state, against southern Idaho farmers, who said they were the victims of persecution by federal agents.

The indictments against the farmers were thrown out by U.S. District Judge Ray McNichols on the grounds of insufficient evidence.

That ruling sparked efforts by the Lincoln County prosecutor's office to file criminal charges against INS and Border Patrol agents involved in the arrests. A secret court inquiry hearing was conducted for evidence-gathering, but no charges had been filed against federal agents.

Some people do anything to avoid paying a ticket

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (UPI) — A Bowling Green State University student faked his own death in order to avoid paying a speeding ticket.

He was found in contempt of court Friday.

Michael K. Groff, 22, a senior from Windham, was scheduled to appear in court last month on the speeding charge. However, the court received a phone call from a man who said he was Groff's brother and said Groff was in a hospital in a coma and was not expected to live.

Then, two letters arrived at the court, one allegedly from the hospital, saying Groff had "expired" March 11, and the other from "Mrs. Pat Groff" thanking the court for "its consideration during this difficult time."

On March 22, the court dismissed the speeding charge against Groff and ordered the state of Ohio to pay the court costs.

The deception was not uncovered until after The Daily Sentinel-Tribune published a death notice concerning Groff March 25.

A woman read the death notice then saw Groff on campus. She told the newspaper Groff was alive, and the paper checked the two letters' authenticity.

Groff appeared Friday before Judge James W. Bachman of Bowling Green Municipal Court.

The judge fined Groff $250 and court costs, ordered him to complete 80 hours of community service work in the city, fined him $30 and costs for speeding and gave him seven days to file the apology letter with the court, after which it may be read by anybody.

Today's briefing

Senators protest surtax

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William Roth, R-Del., co-sponsor of the tax cut plan enacted last year, and at least seven other GOP senators Friday circulated a letter urging President Reagan to reject any income surtax proposal.

Congressional leaders and White House chief of staff James Baker are considering a proposal to impose a 4 percent surtax on taxpayers who earn more than $40,000 a year as a means of raising revenue and lowering the budget deficit.

In their letter, Roth and the others said they were "deeply concerned and distressed" at news reports the president may be amenable to such an income surtax.

Others signing the letter were Sens. Mack Mattingly of Georgia, Jesse Helms of North Carolina, Robert Kasten of Wisconsin, Charles Grassley of Iowa, Orrin Hatch of Utah, Steven Symms of Idaho and Roger Jepsen of Iowa.

Pair plotted murder: Witness

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — Scott David Bean and William Caudill plotted to kill an 18-year-old Idaho Falls man several days before the victim's body was found wrapped in a rug at a city park, witnesses told a Seventh District Court Friday.

The testimony from Mike Porter and Peter Birt came in the second day of testimony at the first-degree murder trial of Bean, 19, and Caudill, 18. The pair is accused of the Oct. 28, 1981, brutal slaying of Neal Walker.

Both witnesses told the seven-woman, five-man jury that the defendants talked about killing Walker three days before the teen's body was discovered by authorities at Freeman Park in Idaho Falls. Police said Walker's body had been wrapped in a heavy rug to prevent its immediate detection.

Partial Bremer diary released

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Arthur Bremer, the troubled Milwaukee loner who shot former Alabama Gov. George Wallace in 1972, worried how news reports would portray him if he succeeded in assassinating his primary target, Richard Nixon.

Bremer's concern was expressed in the first part of his diary, found half buried under a Milwaukee viaduct in 1980. Unpublished excerpts from the diary were released to UPI Friday.

Would Bremer, then 21, be pictured as an "unemployed janitor," "an unemployed part-time busboy," "a college dropout?"

"If they called me a man I would be at once thankful and insulted. At once," he wrote. "I have it — an unemployed malcontent who fancyeed (sic) himself a writer."

Bremer, who lost an appeal to get the manuscript returned to him, is serving a 53-year sentence in a Maryland prison for the attempt on Wallace's life.

State drug raid nets 14

STATELINE (UPI) — Fourteen people were jailed on drug charges following a raid by local and state police at two tavern parking lots in Stateline, authorities said Friday.

Kootenai County Sheriff Floyd Stalder said the 14 suspects, ranging in age from 18 to 26, were arrested during raids late Thursday night of parking lots at the Black Dog Saloon and El Patio Lounge.

He said all of the suspects were from Washington state and all but one were male. Only one suspect, Steven M. Grimmer, 18, Spokane, was booked for felony possession of drugs with intent to sell, Stalder said. The others were arrested on misdemeanor possession charges.

Stalder said 15 sheriff's deputies, state narcotics investigators and local undercover officers also confiscated small amounts of drugs — mostly marijuana — while walking through the parking lots and making arrests.

Billy Joel injured in accident

NEW YORK (UPI) — Piano-playing rock superstar Billy Joel suffered a fractured right wrist and a broken left thumb in a motorcycle crash on Long Island.

The five-time Grammy award winner will recover completely, his doctor said Friday.

Dr. David Andrews said Joel, 32, who has sold more than 26 million records and plays piano in addition to singing and writing songs, would regain complete use of his hands.

Police said Joel, who loves motorcycles and owns four, was hit by a car that ran a red light at 5:40 p.m. The accident occurred in Huntington Station four miles from Joel's home in posh Lloyd Neck.

14-year-old sentenced to life

BALTIMORE (UPI) — A 14-year-old girl was sentenced to life in prison for stabbing a 16-year-old neighbor to death.

Baltimore County Circuit Judge John E. Rainer Jr. sentenced Michelle Lee Caviness, Landsdowne, to life in prison Thursday after a jury found the girl guilty of first-degree murder in the slaying of the teenage boy. She will serve the sentence at the Maryland Institution for Women in Jessup.

Miss Caviness turned 14 just 12 days before the Nov. 7 stabbing of Alexander Smith at a local shopping center, a slaying the jury ruled was premeditated. A person must be at least 14 years old to be tried as an adult on a first-degree murder charge in Maryland.

Testimony in the case showed that Miss Caviness, a ninth-grader at Landsdowne Senior High School who had known Taylor during most her childhood, stabbed him a few doors from his home. Earlier in the day, the two had argued and had a brief fight.

Today's weather

Partly cloudy and warm through Sunday

Twin Falls, Burley-Rupert, Jerome-Gooding areas:
Fair early, then partly cloudy today. Highs 58 to 64. Tonight and Sunday will be partly cloudy. Lows 28 to 34 and highs 57 to 64.

Camas Prairie, Hailey, Wood River valley:
Fair early hours, then partly cloudy. Highs 45 to 50. Tonight and Sunday, partly cloudy with chance of a shower or two. Lows 15 to 20.

Northern Utah and Nevada:
Ne. ada shows sunny, warm days today and Sunday with highs mostly in the 60s. Utah indicates continuing fair with a warming trend through Sunday.

Synopsis:
A dry stable air mass dominated much of the Pacific Northwest Friday. This condition is expected to last through today but there will be some brief rain showers on Sunday. There was no precipitation or clouds throughout Idaho Friday.

Overnight lows were very close to breaking some records. The coldest spot early Friday morning was Stanley with 6 below zero. Most stations had their lows hovering around the 20 mark. Highest temperature recorded in the state was 59 at Lewiston.

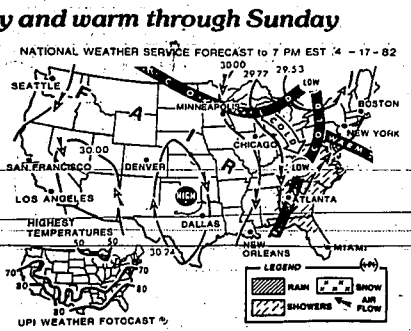

Snow depths are still quite deep in many parts of the central Idaho mountains. The top of Bald Mountain at Sun Valley is still over 100 inches.

On the Magic Valley agricultural scene, planting and fertilization will be good through Wednesday. Below normal temperatures through the first of the week will allow only slow drying of soils but this will improve by Wednesday as temperatures warm to above normal.

Spraying conditions will be fair today as winds reach 8 to 12 mph.

Soil temperature maximum today will be up 2 degrees, to 47 at the Twin Falls key station.

The extended forecast for Monday through Wednesday calls for mostly dry weather through the period. Temperatures will be slightly below normal Monday, warming to above normal by Wednesday. Highs 50 to 60, lows in the upper 20s to 30s.

Court: Unions can't force non-members to help pay

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A labor union cannot compel non-union workers to help pay its negotiating expenses, even if the union is required by law to represent all employees at a workplace, a divided federal appeals court ruled Friday.

Dealing a blow to organized labor, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia declared that in states where "right-to-work" laws prohibit compulsory union membership, federal law "allows states to permit free riders," who need not pay a share of union negotiating expenses.

The 2-1 decision upholds a National Labor Relations Board ruling in a case involving the International Plumbing and Pipefitting Union.

The union fought unsuccessfully to assess a "representation fee" on non-union workers at International Paper Co. plants in Springhill, La.; Pahama City, Fla.; Natchez, Miss., and Camden, Ark.

The decision drew a vehement dissent from Judge Abner Mikva, who charged the majority's conclusion relied on logic "that any freshman student of philosophy would recognize as invalid."

He added, "Common sense and fundamental fairness rebel at the notion that a private organization can be prohibited from collecting expenses it incurs on behalf of non-members whom it is required by law to represent."

The ruling itself was only 11 pages long. But Mikva, a former Democratic congressman from Illinois, filed a 41-page dissent, arguing, "There is no suggestion whatsoever that a worker who pays a fee for services rendered by the union thereby becomes a member of the union.

"In any other context, such a proposition would be facially absurd. Representation fees are payments for services rendered; membership dues support an institution."

The majority opinion, written by Judge J. Edward Lumbard and joined by Judge Roger Robb, noted the union had complained "that free riders pose more of a burden today," but stressed, "That argument is better addressed to Congress than to this court."

The dispute dated back to 1974, when Pipefitters Local 681 in Natchez added a yearly assessment of 2 percent of wages to the existing union dues of $8.25 per month.

The court noted that some pipefitters "quit the union rather than pay the assessment," and that the local's membership in Natchez dropped from 38 to one.

The union, nonetheless, was still obligated to represent all the pipefitters at the facility.

When the union opened contract negotiations with the company in 1977, it proposed clauses levying collective bargaining "representation fees" on non-union pipefitters. The company refused, arguing the clauses would violate right-to-work laws in Arkansas, Florida, Mississippi and Louisiana.

The union then filed an unfair labor practice charge, prompting the court case.

U.S. oil demand drops sharply

NEW YORK (UPI) — U.S. oil demand plummeted 8.3 percent in the first three months this year to 15.6 million barrels a day — the lowest first-quarter level since 1969, the American Petroleum Institute reported Friday.

The nation's crude oil imports dropped 32 percent in the first quarter to 3.2 million barrels daily from 4.7 million barrels a day in the year-before period, the oil industry trade association said.

Domestic crude oil production rose 1.2 to 8.6 million barrels a day from 8.5 million barrels a day in the first quarter last year and provided more than half of total U.S. oil needs.

The API pointed out that first-quarter demand for all petroleum products at 15.6 million barrels daily was substantially less than the 17 million barrels a day supplied in the opening 1981 quarter when demand was off sharply.

"For the quarter as a whole, petroleum products were supplied at the lowest first-quarter rate since 1969," the trade group said.

In March overall oil demand fell 5.3 percent to 15 million barrels a day from 15.8 million barrels daily in March 1981.

Demand for gasoline slipped 3.8 percent to 6 million barrels a day in the first quarter from 6.3 million barrels a day in the same quarter last year.

But March gasoline demand was off only 1.2 percent to 6.2 million barrels daily vs. 6.3 million barrels a day the previous March when U.S. pump prices hit a record $1.37 a gallon.

"The 23 cents-a-gallon decline in the real price of gasoline since the high of March 1981 has only partly offset the long-term effect of the substantial price rises of the early 1979-early 1980 period," the API said.

Unleaded gasoline's market share increased to 54.6 percent in March, up 3 percentage points from March 1981.

Demand for distillate, used primarily for home-heating oil, fell 11 percent in the first quarter and about 1 percent in March below year-earlier levels on a weather-adjusted basis, the group said.

In response to the weakening U.S. appetite for oil, crude imports in March plunged 33.1 percent to 2.9 million barrels a day vs. 4.3 million barrels day the year before.

Total U.S. inventories of crude oil and petroleum products shrunk by 8.9 percent to 1.17 billion barrels.

Bailey takes stand in own defense

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A simple traffic stop on a crowded city street turned into a nightmare for famed attorney F. Lee Bailey when he began to think the police officer who pulled him over was "a psychopath," he said Friday.

Testifying in his own defense against drunken driving charges, the dapper legal wizard recalled the demeanor of officer Peter Cannan the night of Feb. 28 when he was stopped while driving a borrowed Mercedes Benz.

Bailey, 48, said he noticed the officer had a "strange gait" when he approached the Boston attorney, his eyes were "clouded and dilated" and his breath carried a faint odor of beer.

Bailey told the jury, which has listened to almost two weeks of testimony, that he became frightened when Cannan slapped a cigarette out his hands and ordered him to take a field sobriety test.

"I felt that I had a psychopath on my hands," he said.

Bailey outlined his entire day before the arrest, including breakfast in Los Angeles, a lecture at a personal injury conference, a flight to San Francisco and his drive from the airport.

He testified to having a little more than five drinks before his arrest: A bloody mary with brunch, a drink at the conference reception, a drink and several glasses of wine with dinner and a drink on the plane to San Francisco.

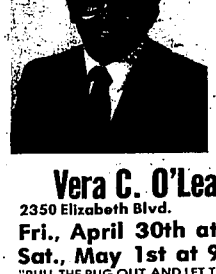

Earlier in the day toxicologist Richard E. Kiszka testified that he ran an independant test on Bailey April 3 where he mimicked the amount of alcohol he consumed the day of his arrest and matched the intervals between drinks.

"Based on my observation of Mr. Bailey and based on the chemical results (of the tests after he drank the liquor) he was not impaired to drive a motor vehicle," Kiszka said.

Reagan defends budget; bargaining nears climax

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan defended his tax cuts Friday and repeated that spending cuts are the best way to cure the economy.

He also said budget bargaining between the White House and Capitol Hill is reaching a "climactic stage."

"The man stands by his basic principles," deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said afterward, cautioning reporters against "overinterpreting" Reagan's remarks as breaking any new ground.

In Minneapolis for a Republican fund-raiser, Treasury Secretary Donald Regan said the talks have only a 50 percent chance to produce agreement, but that an agreement is important for the economy, and the sooner one is reached the better.

"It is still a coin toss whether we will get an agreement," he told a news conference.

Regan declined to be specific on the negotiations, but said he feels the deficit will wind up under $100 billion. The current Reagan budget deficit estimate is $101.9 billion.

Reagan told a luncheon meeting

RONALD REAGAN
Stands by principles of editors and broadcasters from the Southeast that in a recent poll, 77 percent of those questioned "invariably" chose spending cuts over increased taxes as the best way to reduce deficits and cure the economy.

"I think the people are sending a message of common sense if we'll just listen," he said. "They are asking the government to have enough courage to bring spending under control, not just for a quick fix, but permanently.

"That's the only way to restore the confidence of the money market . . . bring interest rates down and keep them down," Reagan said.

The president has been keeping in the background during the talks on the budget, with his chief of staff, James Baker, doing the talking with members of Congress.

Speakes said Reagan remains on the sidelines, "but has perked up a little bit."

Reagan told the editors and broadcasters the discussions "are approaching a climactic stage and I want to express today my strong hope that they succeed."

"We tried to approach the undertaking in a constructive and conciliatory spirit and will continue to do so in the days ahead. It's not just the Congress, it's not just the White House, it's the country as a whole, millions upon millions of hardworking Americans, who need a sound budget.

Strike chokes transit system

BOSTON (UPI) — More than 300,000 Boston area commuters were hit by a wildcat transit strike Friday, struggling through two rush hour nightmares. An angered Gov. Edward King called in the National Guard to police the system.

Despite the union's agreement to return to work at the midnight shift, King ordered MBTA officials to proceed with disciplinary action up to and including dismissal of employees who participated in the strike.

King instructed Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority officials to seek $1 million a day in damages from the striking Boston Carmen's Union and post Guardsman at key locations to prevent trouble Saturday morning when service was to resume.

More than 3,000 MBTA employees angered over the hiring of part-time employees walked off their jobs just before the morning rush hour began Friday, halting service on all trolley and bus lines and causing massive traffic jams on expressways and secondary roads.

Union leaders instructed the strikers to put the system back in gear "first thing" Saturday morning, after a judge late Friday sentenced three union officials to jail and King threatened to fire the strikers.

The high-ranking union officials found in contempt of court were then released.

King, angered by the surprise strike, said the $1 million-a-day fines were appropriate because it represents the daily operating costs of the line.

"There is no compromise on these issues," King told a Statehouse news conference. "The strike was and is illegal. They must go back to work."

King placed the National Guard on alert and called up its military police unit "to protect 'T' property from vandalism and to protect personnel who wish to return to work from harassment."

"We all demand 'T' employees to return to work," the governor said. "But they must know that tomorrow (Saturday) morning I stand prepared to invoke any emergency powers the MBTA management needs to restore service."

Motorists used the word "outrageous" to describe the traffic jams strangling the city while thousands of other commuters hiked their way back and forth to work.

"I think it's a disgrace," said Charles Underhill, 39, an MBTA commuter who spent three hours in bumper-to-bumper traffic and almost 90 minutes looking for a parking space. The traffic, he said, "was absolutely ridiculous."

The dispute, which had been building for months, centered on the MBTA's hiring of part-time bus drivers and stalled contract negotiations. The MBTA said it refused to negotiate until the workers were back on the job.

Union members have been unhappy with the authority's use of part-time workers, specifically over the lack of fringe benefits for the part-time drivers, reduced pay and the assignment of part-timers to preferred bus routes.

Not all Congressmen cashing in on tax break — but many are

By United Press International

Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., did not take the new $75-a-day tax deduction members of Congress voted themselves last December even though he was for it. Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Texas, did take it because "I'm broke," he said.

Most of the members who spoke out publicly about the tax break spurned it.

But they represent only a tiny sample of the 535 members of House and Senate, and there is no way to determine how many of the silent lawmakers took advantage of the new law that could mean a bonanza up to $19,200 a year.

The Internal Revenue Service isn't talking.

In the closing days of the 1981 session of Congress, members approved — without a recorded vote — a measure allowing members to deduct $75 in expenses for every day their house is in session, or during recesses of four days or less. No itemized justification is needed.

Its passage almost was unnoticed, but one attempt to kill it failed in the Senate earlier this year and more repeal efforts are expected.

Common Cause, the self-styled citizens' lobby, called April 15 the day of an "extraordinary tax break" for members of Congress but "day of inequity for ordinary, tax-paying citizens."

Before the new law was passed, members were allowed a flat $3,000 a year deduction to cover their expenses while in Washington.

New Jersey's Rep. Millicent Fenwick, the model for Doonesbury's Lacey Davenport, took her normal $3,000 deduction instead of using the new tax break. At the time the bill was passed, Mrs. Fenwick accused her colleagues of acting like "pickpockets."

"She's against this sort of sneaky way of enacting things and thinks it ought to be a recorded vote," said her spokesman. Mrs. Fenwick was in her home state, campaigning for the Republican nomination for the seat vacated when Sen. Harrison Williams resigned under threat of expulsion.

New Hampshire's Humphrey said he voted for the tax break because "I think it was justifiable — it hadn't been raised since 1953." But he did not take it for himself because he would not accept any salary or benefits higher than those in effect when he was elected in November 1978.

Leland offered no opinions on the right or wrong of the act.

Old-timers' battle with guru returns to courts after vote

ANTELOPE, Ore. (UPI) — The confrontation between disciples of an Indian guru and the old-timers of Antelope went back to the courts Friday after the red-garbed newcomers trounced the old timers at the ballot box.

"The city has lost its heritage as a little Western town. We who have lived here a long time have lost our homes," said Mayor Margaret Hill of the vote which saw the followers of Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh block a move to put the 81-year-old hamlet under county control.

"The city has lost its identity," the mayor said. "It's not the same place it was. Our homes, our property are worth absolutely nothing."

Ninety-seven people went to the two-room schoolhouse to cast paper ballots Thursday. The result was a 55-42 vote against disincorporating the town.

It was a clear victory for the 50-year-old guru and his 280 followers who bought the 64,000-acre Muddy Ranch 17 miles southeast of Antelope last summer for $6 million. They spent another $15 million developing the ranch and later began buying up property in the town itself.

Dave Knapp, a spokesman for the Rajneesh disciples, said, "We would hope that the townspeople will see that we will be neighbors for awhile. Let's see if we can live in harmony."

But disappointed city officials, who proposed municipal suicide to make it harder for the guru to set up businesses in town, said they had just begun to fight.

After the polls closed, 70 votes were challenged. City Attorney Keith Mobley said he expected the election would be attacked in court.

"We're not going to roll over and play dead," Councilwoman Frances Dickson said.

During the voting, the town's women raised money for legal fees by holding a bake sale in the basement of the schoolhouse — taking business away from the only cafe in town, Zorba the Buddha, owned by followers of the guru.

Ma Prem Anand Sheela, also known as Sheela Silverman, co-manager of the Rajneesh ranch, held an election day news conference to outline conditions under which the guru followers would leave town.

Her group wants commercial zoning on the ranch. It also seeks permission to create their own city on the ranch, to be called Rajneeshpuram. An incorporation vote is set for May 18 but might be blocked in court. The group has been blocked in its plans for the ranch in the past by Oregon's strict land use laws.

Antelope townsfolk, many on fixed retirement incomes, feared that if the guru's followers took over the town government they would raise taxes to pay for services not needed in the past.

Harris supports open hearings

BOISE (UPI) — Ada County Prosecutor Jim Harris said Friday he supports an Idaho Press Club effort to gain court review of a 118-year-old state law requiring that preliminary hearings in criminal cases be closed at the request of defendants.

Harris, a Republican candidate for Idaho Attorney General, said his office and the State Prosecuting Attorneys Association supported a recent Press Club attempt to have the legislature repeal the statute. That bill died in a House committee after gaining Senate approval.

The bill would have amended Idaho law to allow closure of hearings only in those instances where defense attorneys could show that public access to the proceeding would jeopardize a defendant's right to a fair trial. Similar legislation already is on the books in 46 states.

"I don't like the statute," Harris said during taping of the KTVB-TV program "Viewpoint."

He said judges should have the "discretionary function" to decide whether hearing should be closed based on the specifics of the case at hand.

Press club officials announced earlier this week they would seek a state Supreme Court review of the 1864 statute. The announcement came after Fourth District Magistrate George L. Carey excluded the public from a preliminary hearing for former Boise Education Association Director Jack Lee White, accused of embezzling at least $245,000 while head of the teachers organization.

Carey Thursday ordered White bound over to district court to stand trial on three embezzlement and 15 forgery counts.

Cessna changes based on Boise crash

BOISE (UPI) — The Cessna Aircraft Co. has been told to improve the vacuum pumps in its 210 model single engine planes in the wake of a January crash that killed four Boiseans.

The National Transportation Safety Board made seven recommendations last month on the plane, including improvement of the vacuum pump system, which operates several crucial instruments.

The federal agency cited the Boise crash as the latest of five fatal crashes since December 1980 that prompted the recommendation.

Orthopedist and pilot Howard Johnson, 50, died in the Jan. 21 crash five miles southwest of Orchard, along with passengers Vernon Redford, 59; Lois Morphis, 49; and her husband, Eugene Morphis, 55.

The drive shaft on the vacuum pump in Johnson's single-engine, pressurized Cessna 210 sheared off, which was the likely cause of the crash, according to NTSB investigators.

The pump also failed on the other crashes, in West Virginia, Montana, Tennessee and New Jersey, in which 11 people died.

The vacuum pump, which is powered by the plane's engine, drives the plane's gyroscopes and pumps air into de-icing "boots" on the wings. The gyroscopes indicate magnetic heading as well as the tilt of the aircraft, both up and down and sideways. The de-icing boots are pneumatic, or inflatable, pieces of rubber on the front of the wings that break up ice.

A spokesman for Cessna at the company's Wichita, Kan., headquarters said the company began offering a kit through dealers on March 12 — a week after the recommendations were issued — that would remedy the problems with the vacuum pump.

PUC rules on irrigation users' listings

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission has told Idaho Power Co. that it will not be required in its general rate cases to turn over the addresses of its irrigation customers to an irrigators organization seeking contributions.

But the commission in an order told Idaho Power that it nevertheless must make public the addresses of irrigators for property tax refund purposes.

The PUC was unsuccessful this year in its attempt to have the Idaho Legislature pass a bill that would remove its responsibility each year to authorize utilities to pass through property tax refunds to irrigation pumping customers.

The annual order lists and makes public the names, but not necessarily the addresses, of the irrigators receiving the refunds.

"We therefore conclude that the Legislature wishes to continue our active supervision of the irrigation funds," the commission said in its order. "We cannot do this unless Idaho Power Co. gives us the names and addresses of all irrigators involved."

The Idaho Irrigation Pumpers Association had asked the PUC March 24 for an order requiring Idaho Power to turn over the pumpers' addresses, saying it wanted to let irrigators know about issues that were being raised in the current Idaho Power rate case.

Suspects in judge-killing transferred to Texas for hearing

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — While two convicts indicted in the slaying of a federal judge remained in prison Friday, three other defendants were transferred to San Antonio for hearings on reducing nearly $4 million in bonds.

El Paso drug dealer Jamiel "Jimmy" Chagra, who is serving a 30-year federal prison term in Illinois, and contract killer Charles V. Harrelson, jailed in Texas for unrelated drug and weapons convictions, were indicted on charges of murder and conspiracy Thursday in the May 29, 1979, shooting death of U.S. District Judge John Wood Jr.

Bond was set at $1 million each.

Chagra's lawyer-brother, Joe, 35; his wife, Elizabeth, 28; and Harrelson's wife, Jo Ann, 41, also were charged in the slaying and were transferred from jails in El Paso and Dallas to San Antonio early Friday. They were being held on bonds ranging from $1 million to $1.6 million.

Arraignment for the five suspects was scheduled for April 28 in San Antonio.

The indictments were handed down after a three-year, $4.7 million-plus investigation that spanned three different grand juries and was described by FBI officials as the most intense investigation since the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Wood, who was 63 when he was shot in the back while leaving his posh San Antonio townhouse, was the first federal judge to be slain this century.

The indictment accused Jimmy Chagra, 37, described by Illinois prison officials as a "quiet, low-profile" inmate, of paying $250,000 to Harrelson, 43, to kill Wood because Chagra was fearful of "Maximum John's" reputation for handing down the harshest possible prison sentences to drug pushers.

The government's key witness apparently is Harrelson's stepdaughter, Teresa Starr Jasper, who spent six months in jail in 1981 for refusing to talk to the grand jury about the Wood killing.

However, she changed her mind and testified last October in exchange for immunity from prosecution, and testified again just 24 hours before indictments were returned.

What's what

When a young woman walks down a main thoroughfare in your town, how often, if at all, is she approached by men with romantic intentions? No doubt this statistic varies from place to place. But it's unlikely that the proposition picture anywhere hereabouts can compare with that of Italy's Rome. There, research reveals, the average female tourist under age 40 gets eight unsolicited invitations a day.

Q. Singer Vicki Carr, what's her real name?
A. Florencia Bisenta de Castillas Martinez Cardona Moss.

It was Adlai Stevenson who said it first: "Flattery is all right, if you don't inhale."

A woman's hair grows faster when she's expecting.

PALINDROMES

"Naomi, sex at noon taxes, I moan." The previous sentence is not supposed to tell you something you don't already know. Rather, it's a palindrome, spelled the same way backward as forward. It turned up in our Language man's research to find the longest palindrome, which may be: "Doc, note, I dissent. A fast never prevents a fatness. I diet on cod."

Q. What were Cleopatra's wigs made of?
A. Rope.

You can figure about 2,500 postal employees at this moment are pregnant.

OLDEST TRADEMARK PATENT

Q. What's the oldest trademark patent in the United States?
A. A drawing of a devil. William Underwood Company, the deviled ham maker, took out the patent in 1870.

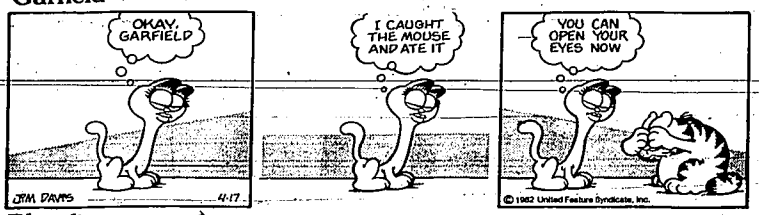

To describe the mentally suspect: On the farm—"He's got a hole in his bucket." At the bakery—"He's three doughnuts shy of a dozen." in Las Vegas—"You can roll his I.Q. with a pair of dice."

Q. How do you account for the fact that women generally hear high notes better than men do?
A. Thinner eardrums, lighter earbones.

Two boys attempt to rob bank

UPPER DARBY, Pa. (UPI) — Police said Friday they hope pictures taken by a bank camera will help them identify two boys who tried to rob the Drexel Hill bank earlier in the week, threatening to set off a grenade if they didn't get some money.

A boy about 9 years old handed a teller at the Southest National Bank a note that threatened that a 10-year-old accomplice would set off a grenade unless he forked over money.

Teller Malinda Powell activated a camera, then asked the boy if he had a sack for the money. When he said he didn't, she said she would get one.

[illegible] to the teller's [illegible] the boys [illegible] gone, she said. [illegible] Darby police detective Rudy [illegible] said the incident took place [illegible] Drexel Hill, Delaware County, [illegible] Tuesday, but was not dis- [illegible] immediately because early [illegible] information was scanty."

[illegible] bank camera pictures of the [illegible] and he hopes to show bank [illegible] later this week, he said. [illegible] said he is confident police will be [illegible] to identify the boys. Police said they are sure the boys are from the area.

"It's funny when you look at what happened, but if the teller had hit the alarm, the place could have been crawling with cops with their guns pointed," D'Alessio said.

"It's bad enough when you have to call parents to tell them their kids are in trouble and to bring them in," D'Alessio said. "But it's even worse when you have to tell them they tried to rob aFbank."

[illegible] (UPI) — Armed [illegible] hid in a bouquet of [illegible] about 10 years old [illegible] at private bank [illegible] $44,444, police said [illegible] said they were amazed by [illegible] at a suburban [illegible] the Banco de Comercio — all the more so because the bomb that the boy left behind turned out to be real.

Bank manager Jose Alanis estimated the robber was 10 years old.

"Some men sent me to give you this floral arrangement to make you hand over 15 million pesos ($328,000)," a teller quoted the boy as saying.

The teller said the boy then put a vase with red roses on the counter and said, "If you don't give me the money, they'll make the flowers explode."

The teller stuffed an estimated 2 million pesos — $44,444 — in cash in two plastic bags after checking the roses and finding five sticks of dynamite and a timer inside the vase.

The boy dashed out of the bank with the money and disappeared into the crowd, leaving the flowers behind, Alanis said.

Police were called and surrounded the bank while explosives experts crouched behind metal shields removed the bomb and took it to a military barracks for dismantling.

Student's dad charged with spanking teacher

LeFLORE, Okla. (UPI) — An assault charge alleges a Latimer County man turned his daughter's science teacher over a desk and spanked him with a paddle, a deputy said Friday.

David Lewis Belson, 38, of Bengal in southeastern Oklahoma pleaded innocent to a misdemeanor charge of assault and battery on a schoolteacher, authorities said. No trial date was set.

Belson is accused of spaking LeFlore High School science teacher Jim Combs, 58, earlier this month.

"The parent was mad because his daughter got a whipping, so he went in and spanked the teacher with a paddle," LeFlore County Deputy Jim Kersh said Friday.

A paramedic aids a worker injured in Thursday's collapse of a bridge under construction UPI

Bridge investigation begins

Takes weeks to determine cause of crash that killed 12

EAST CHICAGO, Ind. (UPI) — An independent investigating firm will seek to determine the cause of a bridge ramp collapse that sent at least 12 men crashing to their deaths and injured 20 others.

Deputies from the Lake County Coroner's office returned to the site of the crash at daybreak to dig through the tons of concrete and steel looking for any other victims who may have been fatally crushed when the unfinished 50-foot high ramp caved in Thursday.

However, no other workers had been reported missing.

Highway officials met to discuss the methods of determining the cause of the collapse, which occured while concrete was being poured on a portion of the ramp. They also announced the plan to have an independent firm examine the site to search.

The investigation could take months, state officials said.

James Denbo, deputy commissioner of the Indiana Occupational Safety and Health Administration, said investigators would look at "the entire job site — materials, people and equipment" to determine the cause of the collapse and "whether any violations were involved."

Officials from the federal and state Occupational Safety and Health Administration also would participate in a coroner's inquest.

Coroner Albert Willardo Friday completed identification of the bodies, naming Ruberto Ribio of Whiting as the man whose body was found encased in the concrete being poured at the time of the accident. His body had been speared by a steel reinforcement rod.

Among the victims was a state highway inspector, Michael Beird.

Four people remained in critical condition at St. Catherine's Hospital. Most of the others still in hospitals were listed in fair condition.

The ramp is part of a controversial, $254 million Indiana road project designed to provide improved traffic access to the local steel mills and the Indiana Toll Road.

The project began in 1973 and had an anticipated completion date of September 1984. It has object of some criticism because of the cost, although 90 percent of it was coming from the federal government.

The bridge was one of four being built by Superior Construction Co. of Gary. Louise Kimberling, highway department spokeswoman, said the firm was "well established. They have done projects for us in the past."

Infant death outrages many

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UPI) — Prosecutors Friday considered filing charges against the parents of a severely retarded, week-old infant who died after they were granted court approval to deny him food, water and medical aid.

"I have a responsibility as prosecutor, in a death of this nature, to examine the possibility of criminal culpability," said Monroe County Prosecutor Barry Brown.

He said a decision whether to file charges against the parents, whose names were not released, will be made by next week.

Attorney Dan Mills, whose partner Andrew Mallor represents the baby's parents, said no charges should be filed against the couple.

"I think it would be a gross miscarriage of justice for the prosecutor to waste his time like that," Mills said. "It has been a tremendous ordeal for the parents."

The 6-pound infant, known only as "Baby Doe," died at 10:03 p.m. EST Thursday at Bloomington Hospital.

He was born with Down's syndrome, a type of mental retardation, and was unable to eat normally because his esophagus was not connected to his stomach. He was not fed intravenously.

"I guess those of us who were involved with the case feel sad about the death, which we were fighting so hard to prevent," said Monroe County Deputy Prosecutor Lawrence Brodeur, the baby's court-appointed guardian.

The infant died hours before Brodeur and an Indiana University law professor had planned to appear before U.S. Supreme Court Justice John Paul Stevens for a stay of an Indiana Supreme Court ruling.

The Indiana court earlier this week refused to order treatment for the baby, upholding an earlier decision by two Monroe County judges.

County Coroner Dr. John Pless Friday was investigating the infant's death, which sparked a giant uproar among "pro-life" groups.

"This is a direct killing," said Dr. J.C. Willke, president of the National Right to Life Committee. "Since when do we allow people to be killed just because they are handicapped?"

"I think it's really disgusting," said Janet Rebone, president of the Monroe County Right To Life. "We certainly don't think that child should have been allowed to die."

James Bopp Jr., a Terre Haute, Ind., lawyer for the organization, said, "in my opinion, this child was neglected and abused" in violation of Indiana and federal law.

But asked if he believed murder charges should be brought against the parents, Bopp said, "No, I do not. We can justifiably have sympathy with them."

Willkie agreed, stating that the burden of grief and emotional stress on the parents was overbearing.

They both called for tightening state and federal laws so similar deaths could not occur in the future.

"It is clear . . . that our laws need to be strengthened," Bopp said. "The ordinary treatment afforded to any child should be afforded to handicapped children."

At least 10 couples had sought to adopt the infant after his plight became known.

Shirley and Bobby Wright of Evansville went so far as to file a petition for legal guardianship in circuit court.

Smoking stunts growth of fetus

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A researcher said Friday pregnant women who smoke likely will give birth to smaller-than-normal children and he called for an additional warning directed at mothers-to-be on all cigarette packs.

"It's only an opinion, but I think in the future packages of cigarettes should have a warning saying smoking during pregnancy could affect the fetus," Dr. Jorge Bassi said in an interview.

In a report prepared for the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology, Bassi said pregnant women who smoke probably will give birth to smaller-than-normal babies subject to developmental problems well past infancy.

"The more she smokes the more she affects the fetus," Bassi said

The report was based on tests that subjected laboratory rats to cigarette smoke through automatic smoking machines. The Columbia University research team found maternal smoking affected all parts of the fetus, but particularly decreased the size and number of lung cells.

Although the results of the animal experiments could not be applied directly to humans, Bassi said, they should help scientist gain a clearer picture of how smoking retards the growth of developing babies.

"In human beings it can strongly be proved that there is damage to the fetus in many ways — fetal growth is retarded," Bassi said. "Later on, if delivered, the baby has to carry the medical consequences in different areas — physical, intellectual and behavioral."

Babies who are born to women who smoke during pregnancy are, on the average, 7 ounces lighter than babies born to non-smokers, Bassi said. Low birth weight also is associated with a host of developmental problems.

"Tobacco smoke is apparently even more harmful to fetal growth than food restriction," he said. "The growth retardation . . . involved a decrease in the weight of the whole fetus, in the number of liver cells, and in the number and size of lung cells."

Bassi said there was "fairly substantial" evidence supporting a causal relationship between maternal smoking and reduced birth weight.

"The more a woman smokes during pregnancy, the smaller her baby will be," he said.

The study showed the relationship between smoking and the reduced birth size is independent of other factors — such as race, mother's size, child's sex — that influence birth weight.

Watt halts eased strip mine regulations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Interior Secretary James Watt agreed Friday to temporarily halt plans for a sweeping revision of federal strip mine regulations until the environmental impact of the proposals is assessed.

The Interior Department and the National Wildlife Federation announced they reached agreement to settle a suit filed by the environmental group. The group had charged that easing of surface mining rules was illegal without an assessment of how the changes might affect the environment.

The federation hailed the agreement with Watt as a "major victory." The Interior Department declined to characterize the settlement.

Dr. Jay Hair, the federation's executive vice president, said the agreement will force Watt "to pay attention to the environmental impact of his actions, at least with regard to surface mining regulations."

Hair called the development a "shot in the arm for conservationists across the country," adding, "In his zeal to provide regulatory relief for industry, Secretary Watt has been changing regulations without regard for the environment."

The settlement, filed at U.S. District Court in Washington, requires the department to prepare an environmental impact statement on proposed changes in 34 sets of regulations implementing the Surface Mining and Control Reclamation Act of 1977.

Until the environmental assessment is completed, most of the regulations in effect before Watt launched his major revisions will remain in effect.

GM, UAW sign new '82 contract

Union, automaker praise cooperation

DETROIT (UPI) — United Auto Workers and General Motors Corp. signed the newly ratified $3 billion concessionary contract Friday.

Both sides maintain it reflects a new "spirit of cooperation" between the company and the union.

"Even as the pact was being signed, however, leaders on both sides moved to quell possible worker anger at company requests for more concessions through changes in local work agreements.

GM later in the day disclosed Chairman Roger Smith earned $489,250 in salary and stock options in 1981 and President F. James McDonald made $423,578.

Neither received bonuses, however, because GM's $333 million profit was below the level needed to kick in the extra compensation. The salaries were a far cry from the nearly $1 million paychecks GM executives took home in the late 1970s.

Nearly 7,000 miles away, GM and Toyota Motor Co. wrapped up three days of closed-door negotiations on a possible joint venture to produce small cars.

But a Japanese newspaper reported the two auto firms have agreed in principle to launch joint production of Celia-type passenger cars by 1965.

In Milwaukee, UAW and American Motors Corp. bargainers exchanged information amid signs a final decision was near on a $150 million employee investment plan.

The GM contract, which took effect Monday, was signed by Smith and McDonald, UAW President Douglas Fraser, Vice President Owen Bieber and each side's 11-member bargaining team.

Smith said the contract was "certainly a major step forward."

"The real benefit of the contract will be the real spirit of cooperation it produces," the chairman said.

The contract was ratified a week ago by a 52 percent vote — one of the smallest in union history. Leaders at the time said the vote reflected workers' resentment of GM as "big, rich and arrogant."

But Fraser said he didn't think the narrow margin would make any difference in carrying out the provisions of the pact.

"You elect a president of the United States by 52 percent and it becomes a landslide," Fraser said. "As the years pass, people will look back to March 21, 1982, and see it as a beginning of a new era."

The mood at the early morning ceremony at GM headquarters was subdued in sharp contrast to the jovial atmosphere that marked the signing of a similar agreement at Ford Motor Co. two months ago.

Bieber said Thursday GM's decision to push publicly for further concessions in negotiations over local work rules was "very stupid" because workers saw the move as "belligerent."

But Smith during the ceremonies reassured the union that GM was "not looking for wholesale concessions."

The new contract, barely ratified a week ago by an angry rank-and-file, completes a trio of giveback contracts covering workers at the Big Three automakers.

Under it, GM agreed to rescind the closings of four plants announced after the first-round negotiations broke off Jan. 28. GM also promised a two-year moratorium on plant closings related to the subcontracting of work to cheaper sources.

The company also pledged guaranteed income for workers with 10 years seniority, a profit sharing program based on GM's net worth and assets and prepaid legal services.

In return, the UAW agreed to concessions analysts say will save the automaker up to $3 billion.

Economy stalls, but housing shows gains

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The depressed construction industry — once a life preserver for the economy — maintained a modest improvement in March for the sixth consecutive month, the government reported Friday.

A leading housing industry analyst suggested the worst may be over, although no dramatic improvement is in sight.

Revised figures on corporate profits, meanwhile, showed more erosion than first reported, and factories in March were operated at only 71.4 percent of capacity.

The Commerce Department said housing starts reached an annual rate of 947,000 last month after seasonal adjustment, a 2.5 percent increase over February.

Revisions for both January and February data moderated their previously reported increases to show a 2.2 percent average gain for both months rather than the previously reported two-month average of 4 percent.

While calling the string of depressed housing starts since August the worst series in 35 years, a leading industry analyst said there are several signs the housing crisis will not deepen further.

"I'm just hesitant to say this is the bottom but it certainly seems that way," said Michael Sumichrast, chief economist of the major industry trade group, the National Association of Home Builders. "They are probably not going to go down any more."

"You know spring," Sumichrast said. "There are some indications of quite a bit of interest by people to come out and look. Builders are fighting back by offering smaller units."

Housing expenditures, which reach into the appliance industries and the enormous construction supply business, also have an immediate effect on employment levels. This helps to make a crucial element of the economy.

Yet Sumichrast stressed that avoiding further deterioration does not mean any dramatic improvement is on the way. "If we are very lucky we will probably end up with the same number (of housing starts) as last year," he said.

So far such luck has not appeared in the industry's cards, he said. The March level of building permits, the first step in construction, rose 9.4 percent to an annual rate of 870,000 units, still not pointing to a breakthrough.

The monthly rate most recently dropped below the million-a-year mark in August. The all-time high for housing starts was the 2.357 million of 1972. In the recent past housing starts have been far below that level, totaling 1.3 million in 1980 and only 1.1 million last year.

The White House released some details Thursday of its plan to spur construction of what Housing Secretary Samuel Pierce Jr. said could be up to 200,000 additional housing units this year. Sumichrast called that "wishful thinking, more than anything else."

Even if the prime rate dropped about three points, Sumichrast said the result would only spur an additional 70,000 units this year.

High interest rates and recession continued to cast a dark shadow on other economic statistics. The Commerce Department, revising its March 19 measure of corporate profits during last year's fourth quarter, said they fell 7.9 percent at an annual rate after taxes, instead of 7.1 percent as originally reported.

Eroding profits are damaging business plans for investment and nullifying the incentive effect of tax cuts.

American factories operated at only 71.4 percent of capacity last month, the Federal Reserve Board said Friday — another reason businesses are not spending more to expand production capacity. The March capacity figure was a 0.6 percentage point drop from February.

Estimate $25,407 needed to break even

Typical family expenses rise 9.8%

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The hypothetical living expenses for a middle-income urban family rose 9.8 percent between 1980 and 1981 to $25,407.

Social Security and income taxes increased the most, the Labor Department reported Friday.

The annual compilation of three hypothetical budgets by the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics for an urban family of four all reflected major increases in expenses from earlier figures.

The lower budget as of the autumn of 1981 was placed at $15,323, up 9.1 percent; the intermediate budget at $25,407, up 9.8 percent; and the higher budget at $38,060, up 10.6 percent.

The department said the increases were approximately 3 percentage points below those recorded from 1979 to 1980.

The budgets represent the costs of a hypothetical list of goods and services portraying relative standards of living in the three categories for a family including a 38-year-old full-time worker, his non-working wife, a 13-year-old boy and an 8-year-old girl.

At the middle-income or intermediate level, the budget showed a 19.3 percent increase in Social Security and disability payments and a 17.5 percent hike in personal income taxes.

Other major increases were the cost of transportation, 12.1 percent, and medical care, 10.7 percent.

The entire $25,407 budget for the middle-income family was: food, $5,843, up 4.9 percent; housing, $5,843, up 8.6 percent; transportation, $2,372, up 12.1 percent; clothing, $1,333, up 3.2 percent; personal care, $508, up 7.9 percent; medical care, 1,443, up 10.7 percent; other family consumption, $1,196, up 7.8 percent; Social Security and disability, $1,703, up 19.3 percent; personal income taxes, $4,443, up 17.5 percent, and other items, $1,021, up 6.7 percent.

The department said that while personal income taxes rose considerably, the jump was 7 percentage points less at the middle-income level than the previous year. The huge Social Security increase, the department said, resulted from both an increase in the contribution rate in 1981 and the increase in the maximum contribution level from $25,900 to $29,700.

FTC votes to close four regional offices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission voted Friday to close by July four of its 10 regional offices — those in Boston, Denver, Seattle and Los Angeles.

The commission will offer the workers transfers to Washington or severance pay.

Regional offices remaining open after the unanimous vote are ones in New York, Atlanta, Cleveland, Chicago, Dallas and San Francisco.

Commission spokeswoman Janet Bass said estimates of the cost savings range from $5 million to $1 million annually, depending upon how many of the estimated 120 workers at the offices due to close by July 15 accept the transfers to Washington.

The FTC, chaired by James Miller, now employes between 1,600 and 1,700 people, 300 of them in the regional offices. Each regional office has about 30 employees.

Affected permanent employees will be offered transfers to Washington at the same pay scale or severance pay, she said. Programs in those offices will be shifted to Washington also.

"The chairman's proposal to 'restructure' the regional offices is a euphemism for closing down 40 percent of the commission's regional presence. There is no satisfactory way in which six offices scattered about the country can do the work of 10," FTC member Michael Pertschuk said in a statement, noting he voted reluctantly in October to close four offices.

He called the regional operations "among the most productive and well-managed enforcement arms of the commission in the last several years. They have paid for themselves several times over in effective law enforcement and hundreds of millions of dollars in redress to injured consumers."

Member Patricia Bailey, noting the panel first decided last fall it should close four offices, said the panel should not have waited to decide which would be closed. She said the delay and uncertainty had affected employees in all the regional operations.

While reviewing its 1982 budget in October the commission decided to close four offices, but later got more money and was able to keep them open. The decision to close four offices was reaffirmed in January.

The commission this year has a budget of about $68 million, but its 1983 budget request is for a bit less.

The FTC's task is to ensure fairness in the marketplace. In conjunction with the Justice Department, it enforces antitrust laws. Its consumer protection unit tries to take care of marketplace abuses, such as false and deceptive advertising.

U.S. oil demand drops to '69 levels

NEW YORK (UPI) — U.S. oil demand plummeted 8.3 percent in the first three months this year to 15.6 million barrels a day.

It was the lowest first-quarter level since 1969, the American Petroleum Institute reported Friday.

The nation's crude oil imports dropped 32 percent in the first quarter to 3.2 million barrels daily from 4.7 million barrels a day in the year-earlier period, the oil industry trade association said.

Domestic crude oil production rose 1.2 percent to 8.6 million barrels a day from 8.5 million barrels in the first quarter last year and provided more than half of total U.S. oil needs.

The API pointed out that first-quarter demand for all petroleum products at 15.6 million barrels daily was substantially less than the 17 million barrels a day supplied in the opening 1981 quarter when demand was off sharply.

"For the quarter as a whole petroleum products were supplied at the lowest first-quarter rate since 1969," the trade group said.

In March overall oil demand fell 5.3 percent to 15 million barrels a day from 15.8 million barrels daily in March 1981.

Demand for gasoline slipped 3.8 percent to 6 million barrels a day in the first quarter from 6.3 million barrels a day in the year-earlier period.

But March gasoline demand was off only 1.2 percent to 6.2 million barrels daily vs. 6.3 million barrels a day the previous March when U.S. pump prices hit a record $1.37 a gallon.

"The 23 cents-a-gallon decline in the real price of gasoline since the high of March 1981 has only partly offset the long-term effect of the substantial price rises of the early 1979-early 1980 period," the API said.

Unleaded gasoline's market share increased to 54.6 percent in March, up 3 percentage points from March 1981.

Demand for distillate, used primarily for home-heating oil, fell 11 percent in the first quarter and about 1 percent in March below year-earlier levels on a weather-adjusted basis, API said.

In response to the weakening U.S. appetite for oil, crude imports in March plunged 33.1 percent to 2.9 million barrels a day vs. 4.3 million barrels day the year before.

Total U.S. inventories of crude oil and petroleum products shrunk 8.9 percent to 1.17 billion barrels on March 31, 1982 from 1.28 billion barrels a year earlier, reflecting industry efforts to reduce stocks in face of falling demand, the API said.

All Savers certificate boosts rate of return to 10.37% Sunday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The next rate to be offered for the tax-exempt All Savers certificate will go to 10.37 percent effective Sunday.

The Treasury Department announced the new rate Thursday, adding that the current rate of 10.16 percent will remain available through Saturday.

The All Savers certificate is unique in that its ultimate yield depends not only on the interest rate, modest compared to money market mutual funds or money market savings certificates, but on the eventual tax savings not available with the other savings instruments.

Up to $1,000 in interest earned on the one-year certificate is excluded from taxes for individuals and up to $2,000 for couples filing joint tax returns, even if all certificates are in the name of one spouse.

The one disadvantage of the certificate, which does not apply to money market mutual funds, is that they tie down the investment for at least a year. Funds cannot be withdrawn before one year without substantial penalty.

The All Savers interest rate is fixed at 70 percent of the annual investment yield on 52-week Treasury bills auctioned each month. The average investment yield on these bills auctioned Thursday was 14.81 percent, 70 percent of which is the next All Savers rate of 10.37 percent.

The latest rate for the tax exempt certificate is still far below the 12.61 percent at which they were introduced in October.

CAB denies interim Braniff lease

WASHINGTON (UPI) — the Civil Aeronautics Board Friday denied interim approval of a proposal that would allow Pan American World Airlines to lease the South American Routes of financially ailing Braniff International Airways.

However, the board said it would set a quick hearing of the unique proposal, and would issue a decision by the end of July.

At a hastily called news conference following a closed door meeting — the second in two days — CAB chairman Daniel McKinnon said the issue was too complex to be decided quickly and a public hearing was necessary to fully examine the issue.

In an "unprecedented request, Braniff and Pan Am filed a joint petition proposing that Pan Am would lease Braniff's lucrative South American routes for $30 million for 4 years.

The arrangement would give Braniff, which is fighting for survival, some much-needed cash, but opponents of the plan have argued the agreement would give Pan Am a virtual monopoly among U.S. airlines serving the South American market.

The unusual agreement has drawn controversy ever since it was announced in March. Seven other airlines have filed petitions with the Board seeking some of Braniff's South American routes and one carrier, American Airlines, suggested to the Board that all airlines after those routes should subsidize Braniff's losses on the routes until the CAB decided which carriers would get them.

Crisis in Falklands, Middle East weaken late Friday stocks rally

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market scored a win after giving up some late-day gains Friday. Trading was active.

Traders got a boost from President Reagan's statement that budget talks were reaching a climactic state.

Profit-taking and trader nervousness about volatile situations in the Falkland Islands and Middle East weakened the rally.

Geosource Inc. was in the spotlight when it skyrocketed 18 ¾ points to 50 ¾. The firm Thursday announced it reached agreement with Aetna Life & Casualty for Geosource to become an Aetna subsidiary. Outstanding Geosource shares not already owned by Aetna will be exchanged for 1.25 shares of Aetna stock. Aetna fell ⅛ to 43 ⅞.

The Dow Jones industrial average, moving slowly higher throughout most the session and ahead nearly 6 points at mid-afternoon, gained 3.81 points to 843.42. The Dow gained 0.48 point for the week overall, its fifth straight weekly advance.

The New York Stock Exchange index gained 0.30 to 67.26 and the price of an average share increased 13 cents. Advances topped declines 939-500 among the 1,871 issues traded at 4 p.m. EST.

Big Board volume came to 55,890,000 shares compared with 45,700,000 traded Thursday.

The market finished out this uneventful trading week with little movement as investors awaited the Federal Reserve Board's report on growth in the nation's money supply shortly after the market closed, with a sizable jump foreseen. The Fed actually reported the basic measure of money known as M1 soared by $7.1 billion in the latest week.

The unsettled Falkland Islands crisis and disturbances in the Middle East also have caused many traders to withdraw to the sidelines.

Investors discounted much negative economic news, including poor first quarter corporate earnings. But other traders remained concerned the prolonged recession may result in disappointing second quarter profits.

Embassy official killed in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Assassins carrying pistols and flowers killed a French Embassy official and his pregnant wife in an assassination that may have been the work of the international terrorist "Carlos," French officials said Friday.

Police said the bodies of Guy Cavallot, 28, and his 25-year-old wife Caroline, seven months pregant, were found in their apartment Thursday night by friends arriving for dinner.

It was the latest in a series of terrorist attacks against diplomatic personnel in Beirut but French Embassy officials said the slaying might be related to another affair involving Ilyich Ramirez Sanchez, the notorious terrorist better known as "Carlos."

The victims were slain execution-style and in a grim twist, the assassins left a bouquet of flowers by the bodies, an embassy spokesman said.

The Cavallots had been expecting dinner guests Thursday night and police said the gunmen apparently gained entrance by posing as delivery men with an order of flowers.

Arriving later, the dinner guests broke down the Cavallots' door when they saw a pool of blood beneath it.

Inside, they found Mrs. Cavallot, shot twice in the head. Her husband, an administrative officer at the French embassy, lay just behind her, shot three times in the head. The bouquet of bloodied flowers lay next to them.

Police said theft was not the motive for the killing. They said the assassins apparently did not search the apartment but left immediately after the slaying, closing the door behind them.

Police said they were investigating the possibility the killings might be connected to a French television investigation into the machinegun slaying last September of French Ambassador Louis Delamare.

They said it was unlikely the killings were part of a war on diplomats that has forced several Arab embassies in Beirut to close or reduce their operations following threats and attacks on diplomatic personnel.

An aide to French Ambassador Paul Marc-Henri said "Carlos" was suspected because Thursday was the day when three terrorists arrested in France had been due to go on trial. The trial, however, was delayed by one week.

U.S. bids to ensure Israel returns Sinai

JERUSALEM (UPI) — U.S. Deputy Secretary of State Walter Stoessel, on his first Middle East shuttle mission, met Prime Minister Menachem Begin Friday.

Stoessel made a last-minute bid to ensure that Israel returns the rest of the Sinai to Egypt April 25 as scheduled.

In the West Bank and Gaza Strip, Israeli soldiers killed one Arab and wounded 11 in continuing violence following the Easter Sunday attack on a Moslem shrine by an American-born Israeli.

Emerging from mosques, Arab demonstrators clashed with Israeli soldiers in several West Bank towns, including Arab East Jerusalem, where protestors burned tires and chanted "In blood and spirit we will redeem you, Al Aksa."

Al Aksa is the name of the mosque at the Dome of the Rock shrine attacked on Sunday by a man who rushed inside and opened fire with an M-16 rifle.

Allan Harry Goodman, 37, an American-born Israeli, has been arraigned as the only suspect in the attack.

A military spokesman said troops opened fire, killing one Arab and injuring seven, when a mob of protesters attacked two military patrols in the occupied Gaza Strip.

Queen leads Canada's celebration

OTTAWA, Canada (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth presided over a national celebration Friday to mark the proclamation of Canada's new constitution.

But she took time out from a hectic schedule to receive a detailed briefing on the Falkland Islands crisis.

The queen was leading Canadians in celebrating the severence of their last colonial ties to Britain even as a British war fleet was steaming towards the Falklands to reclaim another colony from Argentina.

The queen's second son, Prince Andrew, is a helicopter pilot aboard the aircraft carrier HMS Invincible, one of two carriers in the fleet.

Canadian officials said the 55-year-old monarch was briefed on the crisis in a direct scrambled telephone hook-up with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's No. 10 Downing Street office.

They did not say whether the queen spoke to Mrs. Thatcher personally.

Special telephone links with scramblers have been set up between Canada and London. Reservations have been made on every flight to Canada from London in the event diplomatic couriers must bring documents to Ottawa for the queen to sign.

The confrontation between Britain and Argentina over the Falkland Islands and Quebec's opposition to Canada's new constitution clouded the festivities surrounding the queen's historic state visit.

The queen began her official duties with a brief tour of St. Bartholomew's Anglican Church, a small Gothic Revival church founded a year before Canada attained nationhood in 1867.

Prince Philip flew to Ottawa to join the queen for a luncheon with Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau at his official residence.

As they left the church for Trudeau's residence, a familiar face appeared in the crowd of well-wishers waiting to catch a glimpse of the queen.

Nicaragua warns U.S. ships

Nicaragua claims a U.S. destroyer is pointing its rockets

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Nicaragua charged Friday that three U.S. warships were in its territorial waters and demanded their immediate withdrawal.

The foreign ministry said the destroyer USS Coontz was first spotted off Nicaragua's Corn Island on Monday and has since been joined by two more warships.

It said their presence was discovered by reconnaisance flights by the Sandinista Air Force.

"We demand the immediate withdrawal of the North American warships, including the destroyer USS Coontz, from our national waters," said a protest note addressed to Secretary of State Alexander Haig.

Aerial photographs showed one unidentified destroyer had dispatched two smaller boats toward Corn Island in the Carribbean 43 miles off Nicaragua's east coast, the Foreign Ministry communique said.

Another of the three ships was steaming toward the Caribbean port city of Puerto Cabezas, 229 miles northeast of Managua, the ministry said.

The communique did not pinpoint the exact location of any of the vessels or give any names of the ships except the Coontz, but it did describe one of the U.S. Navy ships as a "war frigate" equipped with FFG-23 missiles.

The Coontz was last reported about 25 miles off Corn Island late Wednesday, the official government newspaper Barricada said.

Fishermen first spotted the Coontz on Monday.

Washington has not commented on the ships.

But U.S. Ambassador Anthony Quainton told officials of the leftist Sandinsta government that he was informed the Coontz was on "routine patrol," Barricada said.

The Sandinistas have been extremely worried the United States will use military force to support rightist exiles reportedly plotting a counter-revolution to be launched from neighboring Honduras.

For the past several weeks Nicaraguans have said the believe an invasion by the United States is imminent.

Salvadoran president selected

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — A coalition of right-wing parties has chosen a prominent rightist to be El Salvador's next president, dashing hopes that the U.S.-backed Christian Democrats might retain positions of power in a new government, politicians said Friday.

Top officials of the conservative National Conciliation Party said a right-wing coalition that holds a controlling majority in the newly elected constituent assembly would name Antonio Rodriguez Porth as president next week.

Rodriguez Porth, a lawyer, was foreign minister when the PCN was in power in the 1960's and 1970's.

Last year he joined the newly formed ultra-rightist Nationalist Republican Alliance Party, known as ARENA, led by ex-national guard Maj. Roberto D'Aubuisson.

PCN Director Raul Molina will be named vice president, the sources said.

The new 60-member assembly, which is expected to announce the new executives formally after its inaugural session on Monday, received its credentials Friday in an emotion-charged ceremony at the legislative headquarters.

Electoral Commission President Jorge Bustamante presented credentials to the assemblymen — 24 Christian Democrats, 19 members of ARENA, and 16 assembly men from smaller rightist parties taking part in the coalition.

D'Aubuisson told the ceremony he and the other deputies were determined to "work 25 hours a day if possible" to pull the Central American nation of 4.8 million people out of the financial and political crises that afflict it.

"This assembly is the end result of the massive civic participations in the March 28 elections," he said.

D'Aubuisson, described by former U.S. Ambassador Robert White as a "pathological killer," said he has not yet decided whether to take a cabinet seat himself. Cabinet members will be announced Monday or Tuesday, he said.

Marathon multi-party negotiations that lasted until nearly midnight Thursday dealt a severe blow to the moderate Christian Democrats, who were apparently unable to win more than two cabinet posts — the foreign and justice ministries.

Poles honor victims of martial law

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Some 500 Poles staged a silent demonstration in Warsaw's central square Friday to mark the deaths of 12 people believed to have been killed in clashes with authorities since martial law was declared.

The demonstrators lit 12 candles on the flower cross in Victory Square built by Warsaw residents to mark the 1979 visit of Pope John Paul II to Poland and the funeral site for Archbishop Stefan Wyszynski, who died in 1981.

Police cordoned off the square and, after about 20 minutes, the crowd was told to disperse. The demonstrators left in silence.

Eight pro-Solidarity coal miners were officially reported killed during clashes with police shortly after the declaration of martial law Dec. 13. One person died in a Gdansk hospital and three others were rumored to have been killed, although their deaths never were confirmed.

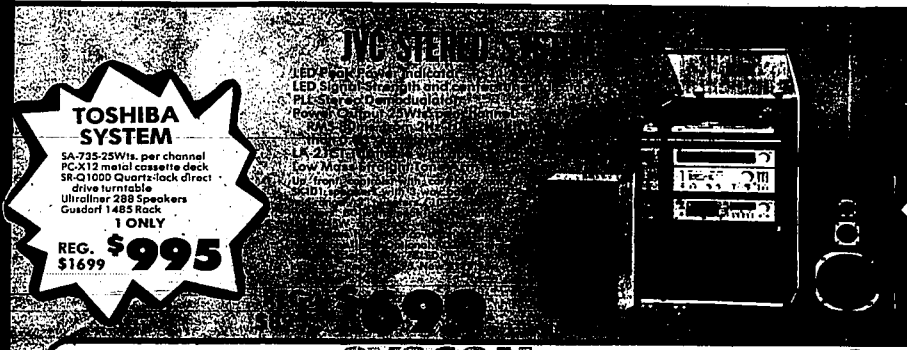

Warsaw University officials, meanwhile, said students held a five-minute "strike" Thursday to protest the firing of Rector Henryk Samsonowicz, whom the regime had considered too liberal.

Sources said some 8,000 students participated in the five-minute recess from classes.

The students also circulated a petition to be forwarded to the Ministry of Education demanding Smasonowicz's reinstatement, the sources said.

At the same time, Archbishop Jozef Glemp, Poland's Roman Catholic primate, said the church and the government should work together to solve the country's problems without foreign interference.

Watson's 68 good for T of C lead

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (UPI) — Steady Tom Watson fired a 4-under-par 68 Friday to go with his opening-round 69 to take a one-stroke lead midway through the $350,000 Tournament of Champions.

The tournament is sponsored by MONY.

Watson had to withstand a surprising rally by England's Peter Oosterhuis, who began the day at even-par but carded a 66 for the low round of the day and was alone at 138, one shot behind Watson.

First-round leader Lanny Wadkins had a 72 and was a stroke behind Oosterhuis at 139. Seven golfers were at 142 and five others, including defending champion Lee Trevino, were at 143.

Craig Stadler, last week's Masters winner, shot a 72 to go with his first-round 74 and was nine shots behind the leader at 146.

Watson carded his first birdie of the day on the third hole when he dropped a looping 12-foot putt. He moved to 5-under with a two-foot putt for a birdie on the 13th hole and went to 6-under and into a share of the lead with Wadkins and Oosterhuis with his third birdie of the day on the 16th hole.

On No. 17, Watson bolted into the lead when he sank an 18-foot birdie putt while Wadkins, his playing partner, bogeyed the hole.

In contrast to his opening round, when he was forced to scramble on nearly every hole, Watson was in complete control Friday.

"I played pretty well today, not like yesterday's round at all," said the 32-year-old Watson, the four-time Player of the Year who was dethroned last year by Bill Rogers.

Watson said he couldn't understand why scores weren't lower over the 6,911-yard La Costa Country Club course. Temperatures were in the 70s Friday with little wind, and most players said they had never seen the course in better condition.

"I'm very surprised that 7-under is leading the tournament," Watson said. "There are still a lot of birdies out there."

Oosterhuis, at 33 the oldest player ever to qualify for the first time for the elite tournament, has won 19 tournaments in his nine years on the pro tour, but none in the United States. He qualified for the Tournament of Champions by winning last year's Canadian Open.

Oosterhuis, a long hitter who now lives in Santa Barbara, Calif., used a brilliant putting game in carding seven birdies and a lone bogey. His most dramatic putt came on the 16th hole when he sank a 45-footer for a birdie that moved him to 6-under.

"I had a few loose shots, but I got away with them," the 6-foot-5, 210-pound Oosterhuis said. "I've never been the world's straightest driver, but it seems I have a good attitude coming out of the rough. That and my putting today made the round for me."

The 72-hole tournament ends Sunday with the winner earning $63,000 and the last-place finisher getting $3,650.

Robbins helps Eagles sweep

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Collecting game-winning hits approximately five hours apart, Mike Robbins led College of Southern Idaho to a double-header sweep of Treasure Valley Community College Friday at Frontier Field, 4-2 and 6-5.

Robbins' solo home run capped CSI's three-run first inning in the opener and gave the Eagles all the runs they needed. The 6-1, 200-pounder then ended the chilly nightcap in the eighth inning by smacking a pinch-hit single with the bases loaded.

The results left CSI with a 15-5 record overall and a 3-0 mark against regional foes, but they also left Coach Jim Walker concerned with his hitters.

"We don't have anybody from the sixth, seventh, eighth and ninth spots producing," Walker said. "Outside of (Mark) Barbagelata, (Bobby) Thompson and Mike Robbins, we don't score." Friday's three-for-25 performance from the final four spots in the Eagles' order makes Walker's complaint legitimate.

The Eagles did most of their scoring early. In the first game, Barbagelata crushed a triple to right-center field. He scored on Thompson's game-tying home run, a shot that nearly disrupted activity in the tennis courts beyond the left-field fence. Moments later, Robbins gave CSI a 3-2 advantage with his bomb over the center-field barrier.

After enduring a shaky first inning, Darrell Freter settled down and preserved the Eagles' lead. Pitching his first game since the season-opening tournament at Treasure Valley, Freter blanked the Chukars from the second through the fifth innings. "He's just a hell of an athlete," Walker said of Freter.

David Wrape pitched the final two innings for CSI, striking out TVCC's side in the final frame.

The second game unfolded much like its predecessor. CSI starter Scott Troester yielded a run in the first, but the Eagles responded with another three-run effort in their initial time at bat.

Barbagelata, who scored three runs in the nightcap, again catalyzed CSI's attack in the first with a single. Thompson singled and moved to second on a TVCC's throw trying to get Barbagelata at third. Designated hitter Tim McMannon singled sharply through the drawn-in infield, scoring both baserunners, and advanced to third when Chukar center fielder Tony Laird allowed the ball to roll underneath his glove. McMannon scored on Phil Braase's infield out.

The Eagles added a run in the second as Thompson's single drove in Barbagelata and got another in the fifth when Barbagelata tripled and McMannon sent him home with a sacrifice fly.

Troester, meanwhile, had limited the Chukars to one run and three hits through five innings. After giving up a home run to Laird (who went four-for-five in the double header) in the sixth, Troester sat down in favor of Brad McClure.

McClure soon joined Troester on the bench after coming one out away from ending the game. The reliever coaxed a pop-up and fanned a batter, but gave up a base hit, two walks and a wild pitch that scored a run.

Brian Osberg, who replaced McClure, walked two more batters, the second forcing in a run and reducing CSI's lead to 5-4. Wrape then came in to try and collect his second save of the day, but he instead issued the fifth walk of the inning, forcing across the tying run. The left-hander finally ended the inning by striking out designated hitter Tom Meredith on a 3-2 pitch.

TVCC had a chance to take the lead in the eighth. Burley product Frank Heckendorn doubled and advanced to third on a wild pitch. But with one out, Chukar Coach Bill Taylor called for the squeeze play, which failed when pinch-batter Bob Hancock missed Wrape's 1-2 pitch and Heckendorn was caught off third base for a double play.

CSI's winning rally in the bottom of the eighth was built on walks to McMannon and Rik McDonald and TVCC pitcher Bob Combs' plunking of Rod Gust, loading the bases.

Batting for Mickey Lucero, Robbins took a ball and a strike, then rapped Combs' third pitch into left field.

CSI and TVCC meet for another double header today at 1 p.m. Greg Steffanich will start the first game for the Eagles, with Tracy Poulson slated to start the second game.

Holmes dubs foe 'Looney Cooney'

Heavyweight champ berates challenger for title fight delay

CHICAGO (UPI) — To hear Larry Holmes tell it Friday, his June 11 fight with Gerry Cooney will be a matter of chewing up "Looney Cooney" and spitting him out.

"I will knock Gerry Cooney out," said the World Boxing Council heavyweight champ. "I have the determination to win."

At a news conference to hype the upcoming fight at Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas, Holmes baited Cooney for canceling their original March 15 date because of a muscle tear.

"I still can't figure out how anyone can walk away from $10 million," Holmes said. "I would've crawled into the ring for that."

For that reason, Holmes said, he has nicknamed Cooney "Looney".

The fighters' estimated purses for the upcoming bout are $10 million each. Ticket prices range from $100 to $600. The fight will be carried by two cable television companies.

Holmes answered with an unabashed "Yeah" when asked if he would have fought an injured man.

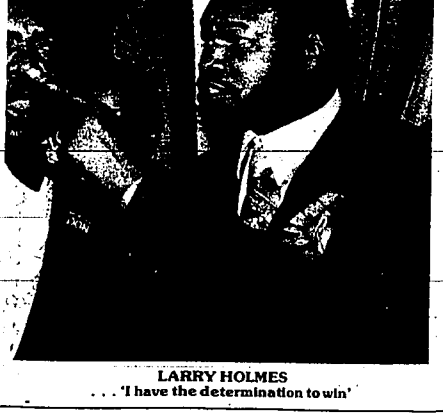

"Why should I give anyone an edge?," he said. "I'm not a doctor but if it was me, I'd have gone in the ring and fought."

Holmes, 32, won the WBC world title from Ken Norton June 9, 1978, and has defended it 11 times. He turned Muhammed Ali out to pasture after 10 rounds in 1980. His 39-0 record includes 29 knockouts.

Holmes said his last fight, against Renaldo Snipes Nov. 6 in Pittsburgh, went 11 rounds because of "carelessness". Holmes was knocked down by a wild overhand right in the seventh round but came back to stop Snipes in the 11th.

"I was not embarrassed by my showing against Snipes. I was practicing things and doing things I wouldn't ordinarily do," he said.

Cooney, 25, the No. 1 contender despite the fact that he has not fought in 11 months, is 25-0 with 22 knockouts. Cooney, who received doctor's permission to begin sparring last week, dropped sparring partner Walter Santemore with a left hook, his best punch, in training last Tuesday. Cooney's handlers say Cooney, who is a converted left-hander, has increased the strength in weaker right hand through weight training.

Star hurdler Nehemiah spurns track for 49ers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — World record-holding high hurdler Renaldo Nehemiah, the only man in history to cover 110 meters in less than 13 seconds, turned his back on track and field Friday by signing a multi-year professional football contract with the Super Bowl champion San Francisco 49ers.

Terms of Nehemiah's contract were not revealed, but it is believed he signed a four-year package calling for a half million dollars.

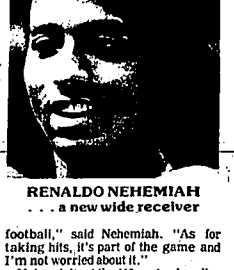

Announcement of Nehemiah's signing was made at a news conference and the skinny hurdler said, "There is nothing left for me to do in track and field."

Nehemiah, who stands 6-1 and weighs only 177 pounds, will be tried as a wide receiver with the 49ers. In a practice session before Coach Bill Walsh, Nehemiah was clocked in 4.1 seconds for 40 yards.

Although Nehemiah's football experience is limited to the high school level, both Nehemiah and Walsh said they think he can make the grade in the National Football League.

"He has tremendous athletic tools, so it's inconceivable he can't perform," said Walsh. "I think we (49ers staff) have the knowledge and the background to make a judgment as to his talents."

"It's not that I'm a total stranger to football," said Nehemiah. "As for taking hits, it's part of the game and I'm not worried about it."

RENALDO NEHEMIAH
. . . a new wide receiver

Nehemiah set the 110-meter hurdles world record of 12.93 seconds at an international track meet in Zurich, Switzerland, last August. In addition, he holds four indoor hurdles world marks, ranging from 50 yards through 55 meters.

Seven other NFL teams bid for Nehemiah, and he said he picked San Francisco because he was impressed with the team and Walsh.

Twin Falls shooters excel in PITA prelims

TWIN FALLS — Bernie Voyles and Ron Pope gave a Twin Falls look to the "preliminary day" competition in the Pacific International Trapshooting Association competition Friday.

The state meet will resume at 8 a.m. today with the championship doubles followed by the first half of the state singles.

The competition is being conducted at the Twin Falls Gun Club facilities on Washington Street North at Snake River Canyon.

Voyles took the AA singles title by breaking 100 straight and then nipping Carl Kelly of Buhl in a shootoff while Pope took the handicap singles with 92. In the preliminary doubles, A.L. Hansen, Foster City, Calif., was the winner with 92.

Class winners Friday include:

Singles
AA—Bernie Voyles, Twin Falls, 100x100; A—Manny Mingola, Livermore, Calif., 98; B—Joe Nelson, Hazelton, 97, in shootoff against Stan Atkinson, Ketchum, and Evan Hayes, American Falls; C—Dave Vance, Twin Falls, 93, and D—Jeff Scott, Kimberly, 96.

Handicap

Braves capture 9th in row, 1 away from tying NL mark

By United Press International

National

The Atlanta Braves continue their pow-wow.

Brett Butler's two-run single and Bob Horner's RBI double keyed a five-run, sixth-inning outburst that powered the Atlanta Braves to their ninth straight victory Friday night, a 5-3 decision over the Houston Astros.

The triumph moved Atlanta to within one victory of tying the National League record for the most wins at the start of the season. The 1955 Brooklyn Dodgers and the 1962 Pittsburgh Pirates hold that mark.

Held to an infield single by Nolan Ryan through five innings, the Braves erupted for five runs in the sixth, while getting only three hits. Bruce Benedict led off the inning with a double and Rafael Ramirez walked. After an infield out, Brett Butler singled in two runs and stole second before going to third on an infield out and scoring on a wild pitch. One out later, Dale Murphy walked and Horner doubled. Dave Smith then replaced Ryan. Horner scored when Smith threw wildly to first on Chris Chambliss' slow roller to the mound.

Rick Mahler started for Atlanta and went 5 1-3 innings. Larry McWilliams, 2-0, came on with the bases loaded and one out in the sixth to get the victory. Rick Camp, who came in in the ninth, notched his second save of the year.

Padres 8, Dodgers 3

At San Diego, Sixto Lezcano's sixth-inning double scored Ruppert Jones from first base with the winning run and Luis Salazar knocked in two runs to power San Diego over Los Angeles.

John Curtis, 1-0, went seven innings in his first start of the season, allowing eight hits — four of them in second inning when the Dodgers scored all their runs. Jerry Reuss, 0-1, took the loss, the Dodgers' third in a row as the Padres won their third straight.

Jones opened the sixth with a walk and scored on a hit-and-run double by Jones, who later scored on a single by Kurt Bevacqua. The Padres added three unearned runs in the seventh, two of them on a three-base throwing error by first baseman Steve Garvey.

Cardinals 3, Phillies 2

At St. Louis, Bob Forsch pitched a six-hitter over seven innings and had two hits to lead the Cardinals to their sixth straight victory.

The Cardinals wasted no time scoring off Phillies starter Mike Krukow, who had thrown a three-hit shutout against Montreal in his only other start. Lonnie Smith led off the first inning with a triple to left and scored on Tom Herr's sacrifice fly. Keith Hernandez followed with a single and came around on Darrell Porter's triple to right-center.

Giants 6, Reds 1

At San Francisco, Rich Gale fired a three-hitter and Milt May cracked his first homer of the season Friday night to pace San Francisco.

The loss was the sixth straight for the Reds, their longest losing streak since 1978.

Gale, 1-0, gave up a first-inning single to Dave Concepcion and then lost his shutout in the fifth when pinch hitter German Barranca tripled and scored on a single by Ron Oester.

Loser Mario Soto, 0-2, gave up four runs before leaving the game after four innings.

A single by Reggie Smith scored Chili Davis in the first inning, May homered in the second and singles by Davis, Duane Kuiper and Jack Clark and a double steal by Kuiper and Clark made it 4-0 in the third inning.

Pirates 7, Cubs 6

At Pittsburgh, Omar Moreno singled home Tony Pena from third with one out in the bottom of the 12th to lift the Pirates in their home opener. The loss went to Willie Hernandez and Enrique Romo notched the victory with two perfect innings of relief. The Pirates tied it 6-6 in the eighth when Lee Lacy scored on a passed ball.

Expos 4, Mets 3

At New York, Al Oliver led off the ninth inning with his second home run of the season to break a 3-3 to pace Montreal. Oliver, acquired by the Expos from Texas just before the start of the season, socked an 0-2 pitch off reliever Jessie Orosco.

Stein's pinch hit lifts Texas

By United Press International

In a pinch, Bill Stein is all it takes.

Stein, one of baseball's best pinch hitters, doubled in the winning run during a three-run 10th inning against Cy Young winner Rollie Fingers Friday, helping the Texas Rangers to a 4-1 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

American

Last season, Stein set a AL record when he banged seven consecutive hits as a substitute swinger and overall, he batted .450 with nine hits in 20 chances as a pinch-hitter. Against Fingers in his first 1982 at bat, he picked up where he left off.

Mike Richardt opened the 10th with a single off Fingers, 1-2, and went to third on Mark Wagner's single. Stein then doubled in Richardt and one out later, Lee Mazzilli singled home Wagner. After Buddy Bell was intentionally walked to fill the bases, Leon Roberts' sacrifice fly scored Stein with the inning's third run.

The Rangers' Dave Schmidt, a replacement for flu-ridden Doc Medich, pitched perfect ball for three innings before yielding a run in the fourth on Cecil Cooper's RBI groundout. The Rangers made it 1-1 in the fifth against Moose Haas when Larry Parrish and Pat Putnam singled and Wagner doubled. Danny Darwin replaced Schmidt in the sixth and gained the victory. The triumph spoiled the Brewers' rain-delayed home opener before a crowd of 49,887.

Yankees 10, Tigers 2

At Detroit, Lou Piniella drove in three runs with a pair of doubles in the first two innings and Ron Guidry pitched his first complete game in two seasons to give New York its victory.

The game was halted for an hour and 38 minutes after the first batter and when it resumed, New York teed off on starter Pat Underwood to pile up a 7-0 lead after two innings. Singles by Jerry Mumphrey, Dave Winfield and Dave Revering produced the first run of the game, and Piniella doubled home another to complete a two-run first.

Rick Cerone reached first with one out in the second when first baseman Enos Cabell dropped his infield pop-up and New York went on to score five unearned runs.

Guidry had not pitched a complete game since July 23, 1980 but won his first decision by allowing just two walks and striking out five.

Blue Jays 2, Red Sox 0

At Boston, Jesse Barfield tripled in two runs for his first RBI of the season and Luis Leal, 2-0, allowed seven hits in eight innings to lead the Blue Jays. The game's only runs came in the fourth when Barfield, who entered the game batting .100, followed back-to-back singles by Hosken Powell and Ernie Whitt with his drive to the center-field warning track.

Royals 3, Indians 1

At Cleveland, U.L. Washington tripled home Lee May with the go-ahead run in the seventh and Vida Blue and Dan Quisenberry combined on a four-hitter to pace the Royals.

Borg rejects Wimbledon qualifying

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Five-time champion Bjorn Borg turned his back on this year's Wimbledon tennis tournament Friday, claiming he had been unfairly punished because he wanted a rest from the sport.

"I will not play at Wimbledon this year because I have to go through the qualifying competition," said the 25-year-old Swede, explaining his decision to shun the competition with whose name his own has been synonymous for the last six years.

"I have been penalized for wanting to take a rest. The Grand Prix rules are stupid. It's a matter of principle and it is a shame it has come to this," he said in Tokyo, where he was taking part in an exhibition tournament.

Although Borg seemed adamant he would not compete, there is still an opportunity for him to play if he decides to change his mind.

Entries for the $1,068,060 tournament which runs June 21-July 4 close May 10, which gives him almost a month to reflect on his decision.

Another crucial factor is the compromise deal worked out between Borg and Sir Brian Burnett, the chairman of the Wimbledon management committee, in Monte Carlo last week.

Sir Brian proposed that instead of Borg's year running from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31, it should run from March 31, 1982-April 1, 1983, giving Borg an extra three months to play three tournaments next year.

That way he could qualify directly for the main draw despite having a five-month rest from last November until last week.

Although he turned down the plan two weeks ago, if he reconsiders his action, it would be a way around the situation.

"If I had started my schedule in January there would have been no problem," Borg said. "I still love the game, I am not planning to retire, but I won't be at Wimbledon."

Borg began his break from the game last November and spent most of his time playing ice hockey in Sweden, travelling and resting with his wife Mariana. He resumed tennis earlier this month in the Monte Carlo Open.

The All-England Lawn Tennis Club, which ruled Thursday night that Borg could not play at Wimbledon, issued a statement Friday regretting his decision.

A spokesman for the Swedish Tennis Association said Borg's decision was "a disaster" for both the player and Swedish tennis.

Sir Brian added in a statement, "I am deeply sorry that Bjorn Borg has now said he will not enter for Wimbledon this year. Not only is he a fine player, but as he has also brought great credit to the game by his immaculate behavior.

John McEnroe, reigning Wimbledon and U.S. Open champion, said Borg's absence from Wimbledon will be "a great loss not only for world tennis but for Wimbledon."

Favorites win in Houston tourney

HOUSTON (UPI) — Top-seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia overcame early wildness to play near-perfect tennis over a seven-game stretch and crush Eddie Dibbs of Miami 7-5, 6-2 Friday in the River Oaks International quarterfinals.

Eighth-seeded Andres Gomez of Ecuador upset No. 3 Eliot Teltscher 6-1, 1-6, 7-6, but otherwise the quarterfinals went as expected.

Early in the afternoon, second-seeded Jose-Luis Clerc of Argentina outshot Paraguay's Victor Pecci 6-4, 6-4, on the big points while Australian Peter McNamara beat Bolivia's Mario Martinez 7-5, 6-3.

In the semifinals Saturday Lendl plays Gomez and Clerc faces McNamara as they strive for the $100,000 first prize check to be awarded Sunday.

The powerful Lendl enters the semifinals coming off a strong performance against the crafty Dibbs, who is nine years older than his opponent Friday.

Down 5-2 in the first set because of many missed shots, Lendl turned things around behind his cannon-like forehand to run off seven straight game victories. During that string, Dibbs scored only seven points.

With the second set in Lendl's favor 3-2 but Dibbs threatening to get back in the set with a 30-40 lead on Lendl's service, the tall East European served two aces and a service winn to turn the game around and dash Dibbs' final hope.

The win was Lendl's 78th match victory in his last 80 contests.

Clerc, the No. 1 player in Argentina, beat Pecci in a two-hour match played in 90-degree heat and oppressive humidity.

The first eight games in each set were marked with spotty play by both players.

"I played pretty good on the big shots," Clerc said. "I think today I beat him because I played so good on the passing shots."

Pecci's three backhand errors to start the ninth game of the first set allowed Clerc to break service, take a 5-4 lead and go on to win the 10th game at 40-15. In the second set, Clerc eased two backhands in a row past Pecci to turn around Pecci's 30-15 advantage in the ninth game.

Pecci continually tried to drop shot Clerc, but the lanky Argentine easily reached the shots nine out of 10 times and hit them for winners. He said it was a mistake for Pecci to hit so many drop shots and to rush the net when a shot was to Clerc's backhand.

Kentucky would play Louisville in tipoff meet

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — University of Kentucky head basketball Coach Joe B. Hall said Friday he would be "honored" to have his Wildcats meet the University of Louisville Cardinals in the Tip-Off Classic at Springfield, Mass., if both teams are invited.

"If the committee so deems and invites us, we'll play," Hall told UPI in a telephone interview.

He said there had been no contact as yet with the University of Louisville since the tourney selection committee invites the teams it wants to play in the Nov. 20 game.

"The committee does the selecting, but I'd play anybody to get in such a great tournament. It's quite an honor," Hall added.

"Cliff is leading it," Hall said, referring to the efforts of UK Athletic Director Cliff Hagan to have the Wildcats selected.

Twice this week, Hagan reportedly called Mill Piepul, athletic director at American International College and chairman of the Tip Off Classic's executive committee, to suggest the match that Kentucky has resisted for decades.

Piepul said the possibility of a meeting between Kentucky and Louisville "is receiving very strong consideration on our part. We hope to announce something by Wednesday, but we haven't yet decided what we're going to do."

He said the committee is considering at least three other possible games — North Carolina vs. Georgetown, Kentucky vs. Georgetown or Indiana against an unspecified opponent.

While Cardinals coach Denny Crum has been a long-time proponent of a UK-UL confrontation — the two teams haven't met since 1959 — Hall has stonewalled previous attempts to set it up. The just-ended 1982 Kentucky General Assembly tried unsuccessfully to push through a bill to bring about such a meeting between the 'Cats and the Cardinals.

Burley topples Highland 11-7 for third victory of week

BURLEY — Rick Asson opened scoring with a three-run homer and winning pitcher Jim McCord had a three-run triple Friday when the Burley Bobcats dropped the Highland Rams 11-7.

It was the third win of the week for the Bobcats, who travel to Snake River for a single game this afternoon. Burley now stands 8-3 for the year.

Burley bunched enough runs in the third and fourth innings to doom the Rams.

It started in the third when Pete Digler drew a walk and Kory Knopp followed with a base hit. Asson then lost the ball over the leftfield fence. Before the inning ended, Mark Leonard cracked a double and scored on Alan Rice's single.

A pair of walks sandwiched around an error gave Burley a run in the fourth inning and Leonard drew a pass to load the bases. McCord delivered his triple and then scored on Rice' second RBI single.

Burley completed its scoring in the bottom of the sixth when Asson singled and McCord walked and both rolled across on Kelly Kelcher's two-base blow.

Highland, held to a pair of runs delivered on a single by Jeff Higgins in the third, capitalized on three consecutive Burley errors to came up with five runs in the seventh inning.

Ron Chadwick started it with a walk and Mike Coito single. Then came the three errors, the final one a misplayed fly to rightfield that cleared the bases before Burley could get the last out.

Pomerelle to close competitive season

ALBION — The annual Pomerelle spring Fling this week end will close out the 1981-82 ski season for the resort.

Owners Woody and Sandy Anderson say there is one possible exception to the closure however.

"With more snow on the mountain now than we have had in years, we are planning to reopen the resort for Memorial Day," Sandy Anderson said.

She added this depends totally on weather conditions between now and the last weekend in May.

The annual spring fling opens at 9:30 a.m. Saturday with the no alibi downhill. It will be run from the top of the big lift across the ridge and down Milk Run with only two control gates and a finish gate. The "stampede" type event has a $10 entry fee and the skier who crosses the finish gate first takes all entry fees.

The Andersons say there are a total of $325 in cash and gift certificate donations from area merchants, including a $100 cash donation from D.L. Evans Bank.

Other fun gifts and ski assessories donated by Pomerelle and three pair of Reflex ski poles will also be given event winners.

Following the downhill, a gelande jump begins at 10:30 a.m.on Spud run in full view of the lodge. This offers awards to four age groups from six years to 18 years and over. Next is the dual slalom at noon for the same four age groups. The double dual partner slalom will be run at 1 p.m. on Buttermilk where spectators can watch the fun as couples tied together run the slalom gates together.

An obstacle course event will follow infront of the lodge with the final contest at 2:30 to 3 p.m. being a golf game on skis.

Awards will be presented in the lodge between 4 and 4:30 p.m. Most events require a $3 entry fee although the obstacle course and several others will be open to all skiers at no cost.

The Andersons say they will close the resort at the end of the skiing day Sunday, or because of any adverse snow or skiin conditions, but because of thinning crowds.

The ropers competed at the Silver Tree Farm arena in a special Friday-night session but will return to Sdturday's usual start next week.

Feature—1. Lee Thomas, Twin Falls, and Val Christensen, Rupert; 2. Bill Bennett, Carey, and Val Christensen; 3. Mark Harris, Shoshone, and Gary Turner, Hansen; 4. Dee Christensen and Val Christensen, Rupert; 5. Mark Harris and Eric Kasel, Twin Falls; 6. Dee Christensen and Zeb Bell, Hansen.

Twin Falls slates junior baseball clinic

TWIN FALLS — Baseball clinics for Twin Falls players age 10 to 12 will be conducted by Steve Thomas early next month.

The Twin Falls Junior Team Association is sponsoring the clinics which are slated for 10-11-year-olds April 30 and May 1 and 12-year-olds on May 7-8 at the LDS softball diamonds in South Park.

Air Forbes Won favored in test today

NEW YORK (UPI) — Air Forbes Won, hoping to boost his stock for the May 1 Kentucky Derby, is the big favorite in the field of 12 3-year-olds entered for Saturday's $150,000 Wood Memorial at Aqueduct.

Air Forbes Won, unbeaten in three career starts, has been installed as an 8-5 favorite in the 1 1/8-mile race and will leave from the No. 2 post. Angel Cordero, Jr., will handle Air Forbes Won, who scored a major victory recently by beating Shimatoree in the Gotham Stakes.

Air Forbes Won, an Ohio-bred owned by Edward Anchel, is a son of Bold Forbes, who won the 1976 Wood in a record 1:47 2-5 and went on to win the Kentucky Derby and Belmont. Bold Forbes received a cut prior to the Preakness and finished third in the second of the Triple Crown races. Cordero also rode Bold Forbes.

Minnesota takes football team indoors

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — The University of Minnesota Board of Regents Friday approved a three-year contract allowing the Gopher football team to play its home games off campus at the municipally owned Metrodome.

The contract allows the university to re-evaluate its situation after each year to determine if playing in the $55 million dome stadium is feasible. Five Twin Cities businesses have offered to underwrite the move with $50,000 if attendance drops.

Regent Mary Schertler, St. Paul, was the only member to vote against accepting the contract with the Metropolitan Sports Facility Commission.

Some regents expressed disenchantment with the Metrodome, which also houses the Minnesota Twins baseball team and Minnesota Vikings football team. Many said they would miss the campus atmosphere of a college football game.

New Orleans signs Canadian all-pro end

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Coach Bum Phillips said Friday that former Canadian Football League All-Pro defensive end Reggie Lewis and three other free agents signed contracts with the New Orleans Saints.

Also signed were defensive backs Marcus Quinn, a 1981 graduate of Louisiana State, and Gerald Megna, as well as running back Al Penn-White.

Lewis went from San Diego State to San Francisco in the 1976 college draft. He tried out with the 49ers twice and with the British Columbia Lions of the CFL before joining Calgary in 1977.

Lewis was named CFL all-pro three times, 1978-80, and was traded to Toronto in mid season of 1981. Quinn went to training camp with Ottawa of the CFL in 1981 but was released.

U.S., Canada hockey teams lose in meet

TAMPERE, Finland (UPI) — Both the United States and Canadian teams gave up an early lead and suffered upset defeats Friday in the World Ice Hockey Championships.

The U.S. lost to Italy, 7-5, for the first time in 50 years while in a game played at Helsinki, Team Canada, although outshooting its rivals 33-13, was stunned by Czechoslovakia, 6-2.

With a second consecutive defeat, the U.S. now is the only team in the eight-nation field without a victory, while Canada dropped to 1-1. The Soviet Union took undisputed possession of first place at 2-0 with a 7-3 victory over Sweden, and in the other game Finland edged West Germany, 4-3.

The last Italian win over the Americans in hockey came at the 1932 Olympics at Garmisch, West Germany, and coach Dave Chambers singled out goalie Jim Corsi as Friday's hero.

Multi-million dollars senior tour planned

DALLAS (UPI) — A Dallas businessman announced Friday he and a group of associates were committing $4 million in prize money for 20 seniors' tournaments to be conducted across the country next year.

John N. Murray announced the formation of World Championship of Golf as a Texas-based corporation which will sponsor the 20-event tour that will attempt to take advantage of the growing interest in seniors' golf.

The forerunner of the current trend toward rich seniors' tournaments, the $450,000 Legends of Golf, will be held next week in Austin, Texas.

Wendell girls turn back Glenns Ferry 97-93

WENDELL — The Wendell boys didn't have a lot of trouble but the girls had to turn back a strong bid by Glenns Ferry to sweep a four-way trackmeet Friday.

The boys dropped Hagerman 102-89½ and it was a ways back to Glenns Ferry and Castleford. The girls division appeared almost to be a dual meet with Wendell taking the win 97-93 over the Pilots.

Tight races and relay mishaps marked the day. The Wendell boys disqualified out of first place in the 800-meter relay while Hagerman and Wendell lead-off legs on the 400-relay collided and were disqualified. They had started in the wrong lanes and decided to correct things at the same time.

The tight races in the boys division came in the distances where Castleford's Ken Burgess just nipped Glenns Ferry Paul Gerhardt in the 1600 meters by a second and the 3200 by one tenth of a second.

Glenns Ferry's girls won all four relays, nipping Wendell by a tenth of a second in the 1600 and by two tenths in the medley.

Wendell will host Bliss, Hagerman, Gooding and Gooding State in the Gooding County championships Tuesday and take most of its team to Glenns Ferry next Friday.

Hansen to seek 7th term in House

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Cracking down on the Internal Revenue Service and backing Reaganomics are the goals of Rep. George Hansen if he is re-elected to a seventh term this year.

"Jimmy Carter left Ronald Reagan with 21 percent interest rates," Hansen said Friday. "They're coming down, and we're turning the economy around, but it's going to be slow for a little longer.

"By August or September, though, we should be moving along at a better clip."

Hansen was speaking to fellow Republicans and members of the press at the Twin Falls-Sun Valley Regional Airport during a four-city tour to launch his re-election campaign. A Pocatello native, Hansen was campaigning with his wife, Connie.

Unopposed in the GOP primary, Hansen will face one of two Democrats — George Anthony of Filer or Richard Stallings of Rexburg — in the November contest for the 2nd District congressional seat.

Hansen laid much blame for the national recession to the, "deficit spending policies" of House Speaker Thomas "Tip" O'Neil, D-Mass.

"And let's not forget, Tip O'Neil is the man who wants to raise taxes, which certainly would be the last straw in crushing our businesses and economy," he said.

Instead, Hansen insists that America's future lies in cutting both federal spending and income tax rates. He said that only by spurring the economy can the nation's $100 billion deficit be eliminated.

"By getting our economy more productive, we will realize greater tax revenue, and that's the only way of cutting into this huge deficit problem."

The congressman also plans to continue his crusade against the IRS — the target of two bills Hansen already has introduced in the House.

One of these plans would strike down the IRS's authority to obtain usually private information during tax audits and other procedures, he said.

"The IRS should only be allowed to collect bills due in the same manner of other agencies."

Hansen also is sponsoring a companion bill that would require income taxes to be levied as a single-rate tax, "resulting in people being able to keep at least 86 cents of every dollar they earn."

He said the legislation, if passed, would eliminate many "hiding corners" for the rich, while allowing poor and middle-income people to retain more of their earnings. The end product would be more spending and investment to help spur the national economy, he claimed.

"I'm looking at this next term to be my lucky seven," Hansen told supporters.

Deadline set to vote on Crystal Springs

County hears appeal, will decide by Wednesday

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County commissioners have set Wednesday as their deadline to decide the fate of the proposed Crystal Springs Estates subdivision.

The deadline was set following Friday's public hearing on the proposed 88-unit subdivision, to be located on a 122-acre parcel in the Crystal Springs orchard area, approximately five miles north of Filer.

Crystal Springs developers David Millard of Seattle and Roy Bylund of Filer are requesting a preliminary plat for the project.

Last week, the Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Commission voted overwhelmingly to deny the request. That decision was based on concerns that the project would be detrimental to wildlife in the area and that the road leading down the Snake River Canyon was unsafe for school buses.

Most of the seven people who attended the Friday's hearing spoke against the project for the same reasons. The developers were not represented. Instead, their position was expressed in a letter submitted last week to the county commissioners.

In appealing the decision to the three-member county commission, the developers labeled the zoning board's action as "prejudicial and discriminatory."

The developers said the zoning board disregarded Filer School District officials' statements that the district could accommodate the increased enrollment generated by the project.

"In our talk with the school superintendent, we suggested that if the grade (of the road) could not be improved to an acceptable standard for the district, arrangements could be made to car pool the students to the top of the rim, as is the practice today."

The developers also objected to the board's concerns about the project's impact on wildlife.

"We assume it was the board's intention to informally rezone our property to a use defined, in our terminology, as a 'wildlife preserve.'

First such birth at MVMH since 1956

Couple excited by triplets

TWIN FALLS — Bassinets in triplicate, trios of toys and diapers by the dozen.

Those will be the supplies required by the mother of the triplets who were born recently at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

A girl and two boys were born to Michael and Cindy Cook of Twin Falls early Wednesday morning at 4:52, 4:53 and 4:54 a.m., respectively.

Amy Lee weighed 4 pounds, 9½ ounces; Jason Edwin weighed 4 pounds, 10 ounces; and Scott Michael weighed 5 pounds, 4 ounces.

They were the first set of triplets to be born at MVMH since 1956.

"Everyone is real excited and thrilled," Mrs. Cook said Friday. "It's been kind of a big deal for everybody."

As of Friday, the two boys remained in the neonatal intensive-care unit because their lungs were not formed fully. But all three are doing well, according to hospital officials. Amy will go home with her mother this Sunday. The boys will follow them sometime later.

The Cooks had known that Cindy would have twins — they run in her family. But about three weeks ago, an ultra-sound examination told them they should expect one more. Mrs. Cook had been taking ovulation medication.

"My husband, he was more frightened than I was at first," she said. The trio was born a month premature, but no major problems resulted. They were delivered by Caesarean section by Dr. Steven Dahl.

As for ordering enough supplies to feed and clothe three babies, "we're playing it by ear. We're excited to get them home and see how it's really going to be," Cindy said.

Michael works at Blacker Appliance and Furniture in Twin Falls, which may prove to be an advantage.

Michael's mother, Mrs. Melba Cook, is a member of the hospital's board of trustees. Cindy's mother is Mrs. Bernice Arave of Rigby.

The Cooks have another daughter, Jennifer, who is 5.

Gooding school board, teachers optimistic about contract talks

By GLEN WARCHOL
Times-News writer

GOODING — While a procedural agreement for contract negotiations continues to elude the board and teachers of the Gooding School District, both sides feel progress is being made following Thursday's negotiating session.

"I'm optimistic," teachers' spokesman Bob Sweet said after the bargaining session. "I have a better feeling tonight. It's a give-and-take process."

Under state law, a procedural agreement, which defines negotiable items and who the negotiators will be, must be signed before bargaining for salary and benefits can begin.

One of the major areas of contention Thursday was the procedure for calling an election in which the teachers will decide who will negotiate for them.

Presently, a majority of the teachers in the district have signed representation cards indicating they want the Gooding Education Association to negotiate for them. About half the teachers belong to the GEA.

Randy Bohannon, the professional negotiator hired by the board, said the trustees fear that many of the teachers were coerced into signing the cards. A secret ballot, he said, would eliminate that concern.

The board wants a new election to determine the representation issue to be called each year if 20 percent of the teachers — about 12 persons — request it, or if the board itself makes the request.

The GEA wants the election to be held only if 40 percent of the teachers demand it, or if the board calls for the election within 30 days of being notified by the association of its intent to negotiate.

A second area discussed — but not agreed upon — was exactly what items would be included in the contract negotiations.

The teachers started out in February with a list of 21 negotiable items. The board's list contained only two items. Over the course of the bargaining sessions, the two sides have closed the gap to about a six-item difference.

Bargaining will resume at the school district's central office at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, April 22. The session is open to the public.

Sportsmen question need for Eagle Rock dam

By RON ZELLAR
Times-News writer

AMERICAN FALLS — The Northwest energy-supply picture took center stage Thursday, as area residents grilled Raft River Rural Electric officials on the utility's plan to build a hydroelectric dam near American Falls.

Why, sportsmen asked, is a consortium of 20 public power co-ops — including Raft River — pursuing plans to build a dam at Eagle Rock when two nuclear power projects backed by 88 public utilities recently were scrapped — ostensibly due to lack of demand?

An informational meeting sponsored by the American Falls Chamber of Commerce attracted more than 175 anglers, conservationists and area residents Thursday night, many of them from American Falls, Burley and Pocatello.

"I don't care how good this dam is, or how valid it is. The fact is . . . we have one little stretch of free-flowing river left, and they're going to take it," said Edward Delonas of Blackfoot, a spokesman for the opponents.

Bud Tracy, the administrative coordinator for the Raft River co-op, said the project might alter fishing in the eight miles of river below American Falls Dam. But he said measures written into the project application would leave the most popular fishing stretch untouched.

The demise of two nuclear power projects being coordinated by the Washington Public Power Supply System resulted from difficulties in financing — not a lack of demand, Tracy said.

He said plans for the Eagle Rock project began in 1976, when the Bonneville Power Administration, which supplies Raft River, served notice that it would not be able to meet the system's load growth after 1983.

The Eagle Rock project would produce power primarily from April to September, he said, the same months during which Raft River experiences its peak demand for irrigation power.

The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission is expected to decide within two weeks whether to accept the Pacific Northwest Generating Co.'s application as written or request additional information. All 20 members of PNGC will share equally in the project, according to Tracy.

Once the application becomes official, copies will be sent to the Idaho Department of Fish and Game and other review agencies. The opponents have filed to become legal interveners in the case, a move that allows participation as the application is reviewed.

John Heimer, a regional Fish and Game biologist, told the audience that the department has serious reservations about the proposed project, but that no official position will be taken until state officials can review the proposed wildlife-mitigation measures.

A survey last summer indicated that fishermen spent 55,000 hours on the stretch of river and caught 22,000 rainbow trout, as well as smaller numbers of other species.

While a majority of the fishing is done in the two miles of river below American Falls, the stretches farther downstream have yielded many trophy-sized rainbow and cut-throat trout, Heimer said.

Idaho Power will fight efforts to move Wiley Dam site

By RON ZELLAR

BLISS — An Idaho Power Co. official says the utility will resist efforts to move its A.J. Wiley hydroelectric project a mile upstream.

Idaho Power has proposed building a 680-foot-long, 100-foot-high earthen dam on the Snake River, southwest of Bliss. The project would generate an estimated 485 million kilowatt-hours of electricity each year, about five times the output of the Shoshone Falls power plant.

In an environmental impact statement released in February, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission suggested moving the project a mile upstream.

The report said the alternate site, near the Bliss bridge on Shoestring Road, posed fewer geologic problems and would minimize the need for expensive measures to seal porous rock at the Wiley site.

However, an attorney for Idaho Power, Nicolas Ysursa, said this week that the company stands by the engineering studies prepared by its own consultants.

Both studies show the need for a "grout curtain" at the Wiley site to prevent leaks around the dam. The curtain would be constructed by drilling holes in a grid pattern and pumping an impermeable substance into the layer of porous lava.

"A grout curtain will be a significant cost item, but the company does not believe it will be as difficult to construct as the commission staff does," Ysursa says.

The FERC report estimates that power from the project would cost the utility 8.78 cents per kilowatt-hour upon completion in 1986, while the alternate site would produce power at 8.1 cents a kwh.

Ysursa says Idaho Power studies show costs of 7.6 cents and 7.57 cents, respectively.

The FERC study also looked at the cost of power from a 250-megawatt coal-fired power plant constructed near Bliss. Such a plant would produce three times as much power at a cost of 8.76 cents a kwh, according to the report.

Opponents of Idaho Power's Wiley Dam project say they plan to file responses to the FERC study before a Monday deadline.

Peter Bowler, a former resident of the Snake River Canyon who applied to be an "intervener" in the application, said he plans to request that the deadline be postponed.

Bowler says opponents did not receive copies of the report until three weeks after the public-comment period began.

His own remarks, Bowler says, will center on the canyon's unique environmental attributes and the project's high cost.

The draft report indicates that if Idaho Power built all of its proposed hydroelectric dams, a coal-fired plant still would be needed within 10 years, he says.

"Wiley Dam is not a solution," he says, "especially with all the environmental and recreational values at stake."

The FERC staff must still write a final environmental impact statement on the Wiley project. Hearings also could be required before the commission acts on Idaho Power's application, according to Ysursa.

Beans Inc. arson case trial nears

SALT LAKE CITY — The two defendants in the Beans Inc. fire case are scheduled to answer to fraud and arson charges in a Salt Lake City courtroom later this month.

Defendants James Woods of Salinas, Calif., and Martin Taylor of Madera, Calif. will be arraigned April 30 on charges that they were responsible for the July 1979 fire that destroyed a warehouse at the Beans Inc. facility in Filer.

Woods, the owner of the Beans Inc. parent company, Commodity Marketing Corp., and Taylor, a business associate of Woods, each have been charged with one count of arson with intent to defraud and one count of insurance fraud.

Salt Lake County prosecutors are claiming jurisdiction in the case because the insurance company and the insurance adjuster for the warehouse are located in Salt Lake City.

Last month, Woods and Taylor were bound over to the district court level following a preliminary hearing on the charges. That means the defendants will be required to plead innocent or guilty to the charges.

Board delays F&G fund request

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley officials have delayed making a formal decision on the Idaho Fish and Game Department's request for $135,000 in federal funds for a hunter-safety education program.

The board of directors of the Region IV Development Association, which represents cities, counties and community organizations in the eight-county region, tabled a vote on the matter Thursday.

Region IV is a regional clearinghouse organization that provides local comment on requests for federal funding.

The Fish and Game Department is seeking the federal funds through the U.S. Department of the Interior. Board members said they want additional information about the program before making a decision.

The board voted to give favorable recommendations to the following grant applications:

• Two applications by the Idaho Department of Transportation for $221,524 in funds for public transportation systems. About $56,000 of the grant, being sought from the U.S. Department of Transportation, would be used to purchase buses for the Twin Falls-based TRANS IV commuter system. That equipment would be used for transportation of elderly and handicapped persons.

• An application from the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare for $93,861 to continue a work-training program at the Youth Services Center in St. Anthony. The funds are being sought from the U.S. Department of Labor.

• An application by the Blaine County Airport Commission for $436,820 in Federal Aviation Administration funds to finance improvements at the Hailey airport.

Judge gives felon 10 years

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Despite reports that he has been threatened by state penitentiary inmates, a 24-year-old Hansen man has been ordered to serve up to 10 years in prison.

Judge Theron Ward of the Fifth District Court ordered Dewey Dee Wilder to serve the previously suspended prison sentence after the defendant admitted violating the terms of his three-year probation.

Ward presided over the case Friday after Judge Daniel Meehl disqualified himself from hearing the matter earlier this week. The disqualification came at Wilder's request.

Wilder was convicted in 1980 on separate charges of first-degree burglary and aggravated assault. At the time, Meehl sentenced the defendant to one year in jail, followed by a three-year probation in lieu of prison.

But in a report filed in February, Idaho Division of Probation and Parole officials alleged that Wilder violated the probation by traveling to Salt Lake City without permission and by possessing firearms.

Defense lawyer Randy Stoker urged Ward not to order a prison sentence, explaining that Wilder had turned state's evidence in a number of Magic Valley criminal cases, including a Gooding County murder case.

Prison inmates, who had been convicted as a result of Wilder's testimony, had made threats to the effect that "the minute he walks on the main yard of the state penitentiary, he's a dead man," Stoker said.

But Prosecutor Harry DeHaan said Wilder's safety was a concern for the penitentiary warden, not the judge. Prison authorities have several options to protect Wilder, he said.

DeHaan characterized Wilder as a repeat offender who had managed to avoid prosecution or sentencing by "tinking on his friends," DeHaan said.

"I think it's common knowlege among local law enforcement that Dewey Dee is a regular," he said. "I think it's finally time that Dewey Dee find out the court means what it says, and he can't buy his way out anymore."

Under the terms of the sentence, Wilder will be allowed credit for time already served in jail. Ward also honored an agreement between DeHaan and Stoker that allows Wilder to remain free on bond until next Friday, when he will report to the sheriff's office for transportation to Boise.

In another case heard Friday, a Caldwell man denied allegations that he had violated a two-year probation, imposed in lieu of a 15-year prison sentence for a 1981 burglary. Friday marked the second time in four months that 19-year-old Ricky Lee Chilton has appeared in court, charged with violating that probation.

On Dec. 18, 1981, Ward decided to continue the probation despite the violations.

In a report filed last month, parole officials alleged that Chilton had failed to make more than a $50 token restitution payment. As part of his probation, Chilton had agreed to pay $2,350 in restitution.

Probation officials also allege that Chilton pointed a loaded pistol at a Caldwell man, that he illegally used a roommate's motorcycle and that he broke into his roommate's locked premises.

Finally, probation officials allege that Chilton misled Ward at the December hearing by claiming he was employed on a full-time basis in Caldwell. The probation report says Chilton was only a part-time employee, and he was fired last month when he failed to report to work.

Ward has scheduled a probation revocation hearing for April 30. Chilton remains in the county jail in lieu of $3,000 bail.

In other criminal cases Friday:

• Kenneth North, 20, of Twin Falls, pleaded guilty to first-degree burglary in connection with a theft at Century Auto Sound, 307 Oak St., earlier this year. He faces a prison term of up to 15 years. Ward ordered a presentence investigation and continued North's release on his own recognizance.

• Bertha B. Anderson, 24, of Twin Falls, pleaded guilty to a felony charge of driving while intoxicated. According to court files, the woman has been convicted of four prior drunken-driving offenses. Under Idaho law, a repeat drunken-driving charge is a felony, carrying a maximum penalty of five years in prison. Ward ordered a presentence investigation and continued the woman's release on $1,000 bond.

• Jimmy Dale Leytham, 26, of Gooding, pleaded guilty to possession of stolen property, a grand theft charge that has a maximum penalty of 14 years in prison. Leytham was found in possession of a stolen 35 mm camera on Oct. 21.

Although Leytham has been convicted of felony charges in the past and has served time in prison, his lawyer, Mike Powers, asked Ward to consider probation in this case in light of Leytham's efforts during the last six months to change his lifestyle.

Ward ordered a presentence investigation and continued Leytham's release on $2,500 bond.

County bags burglary charge

TWIN FALLS — County prosecutors have dropped a burglary charge against a Twin Falls man.

Instead, prosecutors will attempt to convict 21-year-old Berston George, 747 Bolton St., of disturbing the peace.

Prosecutors reduced the charge after they decided that George was intoxicated when he allegedly entered a woman's car on April 2. As such, he could not have formed the intent to commit larceny, which is required under Idaho's definition of burglary, deputy prosecutor Dennis Voorhees said.

George has been released on his own recognizance.

Teacher contracts reviewed

GOODING — Contracts for untenured teachers were reviewed Tuesday by the Gooding school board.

Superintendent Eugene Gibbons said the teachers will be told before May 1 if their contracts will be renewed.

The board also decided to take bids for bus transportation for the district. Bids will be opened at the board's May 11 meeting.

Graduation will be held Monday, May 17, and the last day of school will be May 21, Gibbons said.

CSI student elections slated

TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho students will choose seven class officers this week in the annual spring elections.

There are two candidates for president — Kathleen Elliott of Filer and Mike Burr of Kimberly. Seeking the vice president's position are Greg Baisch of Twin Falls and Dionne Murray of Wendell.

Seven students are running for the three academic sophomore senator positions. They are: Soraya Ezeta of Kimberly; Andrea Hoaglun of Meridian; Dionne Alves and Gloria Hunter, both of Jerome; and Norma McGee, Anna Butts and Debbie Decord, all of Twin Falls.

Linda Mason of Kimberly is the only candidate for the sophomore vocational senator seat. Bryce Butler of Kimberly is the only candidate for the senator-at-large position.

The election will be held Wednesday and Thursday.

Police investigate jewel theft

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls police are looking for a jewel thief in connection with a Thursday afternoon burglary.

The home of Jerry Carter and Shauna Newnam, 475 Caswell Ave. W., was entered through an unlocked front door between 1:30 and 5 p.m. An estimated $600 worth of jewelry was taken.

Dorm panel member named

BOISE — Gov. John Evans has reappointed Maurice Guerry of Buhl to the Dormitory Housing Commission at the College of Southern Idaho.

Guerry, a rancher, lives outside of Buhl. His new term on the commission will run until April 8, 1985.

Motorcycle show set Sunday

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Motorcycle Club will sponsor a motorcycle show this Sunday in Twin Falls City Park.

Registration for the show will be held from 9 to 11:30 a.m. Judging will begin at 12:30 p.m. A best-of-show award will be presented, along with first- and second-place awards in nine categories.

The event is free. Refreshments will be available.

Burley couple arraigned on robbery charge

BURLEY — A man and a woman were arraigned Thursday on robbery charges in Burley in connection with the Wednesday morning robbery of a convenience store.

Abel Davilla, 33, and Sue Workman, 35, both of Burley, are being held in the Cassia County Jail. Bond has been set at $10,000 each, police Capt. Pete Rodriquez said.

Early Wednesday, an armed female escaped with an undisclosed amount of money from the East 16th Street Circle K store in Burley. The woman left with a driver in a waiting vehicle.

Davilla was arrested Wednesday morning at Workman's home, 1227½ Hansen Ave. Police fired tear gas into the house to drive Davilla out, after several unsuccessful attempts to call him from the residence.

Workman was arrested later Wednesday in Jerome.

Crystal Springs

We are appalled at the board's attempt to disregard our property rights and restrict the use of our property without just compensation," the developers said.

Among those raising an objection to the proposal was William Webb, the regional supervisor for the Idaho Fish and Game Department.

Webb said his agency is concerned about continuing "piece-meal" development in the Snake River Canyon and the detrimental effect such developments could have on wildlife in the area. The proposed Crystal Springs project could compound the problem, he said.

Webb said the time may have come for the county to consider zoning areas to provide for permanent wildlife habitats and public access to those areas.

But, under questioning from Commissioner Merl Leonard, Webb acknowledged that Bylund had assisted Fish and Game efforts to provide geese nesting areas on his property. And Webb acknowledged that Bylund had allowed access through his property to the Snake River.

Lloyd Shewmaker of Kimberly asked the commissioners to reject the project in the interest of preserving the county's agricultural and recreational areas. Such areas are crucial to the local economy, he said.

"You've already seen the effects of congestion on agricultural and recreational land. That should be enough proof," Shewmaker said. "Do you need this development in this county. I think the answer is no."

Despite claims to the contrary, the development could have a negative impact on the already overcrowded Filer school system, said Virginia Bitzenburg, who lives southwest of Twin Falls. The 20 to 25 additional students that the development is estimated to generate doesn't sound like much of an increase, she said. But in light of crowded conditions at the elementary school and the voters' previous rejections of bond issues, such an increase could pose problems for the school district, she said.

Glenn Elwell of Jerome questioned whether approval of such a development might set a precedent.

Eagle Rock

The Eagle Rock dam might further increase water temperatures and decrease the amount of dissolved oxygen needed for a healthy trout population, he said.

"It's not going to make the water quality any better," he said. "The question is how much worse is it going to make it?"

The stretch is also a major winter feeding ground for bald eagles, Helmer said.

Area residents questioned assurances from Raft River Electric that the impact on wildlife would be minimal, noting that they had been assured that dissolved oxygen levels below American Falls would be kept at six parts per million when the dam was rebuilt in 1977.

"When Idaho Power built the dam, they agreed it would be six parts per million," said Dale Taylor of American Falls. "Then, it cost too much, so they changed their mind. It seems like we're taking it in the shorts all the time."

A merchant asked if Raft River Electric was prepared to pay for lost revenues to bait shops and gasoline service stations.

Several farmers wanted to know how much private land would be inundated if the dam was built. And others wanted to know if the Eagle Rock dam would be a tax-generating entity or a drain on the economy.

Doug Glascock, the Power County assessor, said power-generating plants pay no taxes on the amount of electricity sold to irrigators.

Tracy said 83 percent of Raft River's demand is for irrigation, but he said many of the other co-ops in the consortium primarily have residential customers.

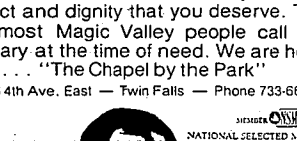

Another critic noted that the BPA sells surplus power at low rates to California and elsewhere in the region from April to June.

Tracy said Raft River, a "firm-power" BPA customer, was not entitled to the lower rates. He said the co-op registered its objections to inequities in the sales contracts during a meeting earlier this week with BPA officials.

Opponents of the proposed dam plan an "Eagle Rock Whitewater Boat Parade" on May 1 from the American Falls boat dock to the Massacre Rocks monument, according to H. Hilbert, the assistant director of the outdoor program at Idaho State University.

Burley facility helps rehabilitate people and things

Mormon's Deseret Industries trains the handicapped to be 'good workers'

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY — Employees at Deseret Industries in Burley begin each day with a song and a prayer. Then, the work day starts for several handicapped people preparing to enter a largely non-handicapped working world.

Deseret Industries is operated by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, which paid for the equipment and building construction, says Marion Lund, the general manager of the Burley facility.

"We're not here to make a profit," Lund says.

The purpose of the 2-year-old, 300,000-square-foot facility is to hire, rehabilitate and train people who cannot compete in the open market because of physical, emotional, social or mental handicaps, he says.

There are 49 employees, only six of whom are non-handicapped. The workers repair and clean donated items, which are sold in the connecting thrift store.

"If they weren't here, many (employees) would be institutionalized," says Bob Campbell, the Northwest rehabilitation coordinator for the church.

For many workers, this is their first job, he says. Employees are taught good working habits, like cleanliness, getting along with fellow workers and being on time.

Each Deseret employee has his or her own story to tell, Lund says.

Worker Tami Smith of Burley was in a car accident several years ago and went into coma, he says. She had to learn to walk and talk all over again, and she now works in the plant's clothing section.

"I'm very thankful to have this job," Smith says. "I'm very thankful to do this work."

Confined to her wheelchair, employee Barbara Jensen of Rupert says she enjoys her job separating the clothing that comes into the plant. There is a family atmosphere, but it still is a job, she says.

Whenever possible, the employees are placed in outside jobs, Campbell says. But in some cases, that is not always realistic because of the handicap, he says. In 1981, 52 percent of the work force was placed, and "that's pretty good," he says.

Employees are referred to Deseret Industries by Mormon bishops. Although church membership is not a prerequisite for hiring, applicants must apply through the bishops, he says.

Non-handicapped persons are allowed to stay 10 months for job training. These workers may be "distressed" and need temporary work, like widows, Lund says.

Since the program began, seven non-Mormons have been employed, Lund says. However, non-church members are expected to live up to church standards and a code of ethics, which include no smoking or drinking and just being a "good Christian," he says.

The minimum pay is $1.69 an hour, but workers are paid based on their productivity, Lund says. This is an incentive for them to do better, Campbell says.

Employees also receive other Mormon social services, Lund says.

"Employers like our employees. They are already trained on the equipment and are glad to get minimum wage. They are good workers," he says.

Thrift-store sales pay the wages, utilities and expenses of the facility, Lund says. While he would not release the amount of 1981 sales, the operation began with 39 employees, but good sales have allowed the hiring of 10 more, he says.

Volunteers are an integral part of Deseret Industries, Lund says. The Burley plant has the highest number of volunteers among the 40 Deseret operations, he says. They often average eight to 10 persons a day.

The volunteers boost employee self-esteem by talking and working along with them, Campbell says.

Lund calls the production part of the facility a "dozen small businesses under one roof." There is a section for television, radio and large and small appliance repair, upholstery work and dry cleaning.

"One man's junk" is cleaned, repaired and transformed into "another man's treasure," Lund says. If items are not usable, they are sold for salvage. Out-of-style or worn clothing is sent to the poor in foreign countries, he says.

Mormon bishops in the Magic Valley have first choice of items for the needy in their area, Lund says. The facility also maintains a store of dishes, bedding and clothing for emergencies.

Donations come from Magic Valley Mormon wards and non-church members, Lund says.

After the items are sanitized and repaired, they end up in the spacious, 12,500-square-foot thrift store, which looks like anything but a second-hand store. There are cheery displays, carpeting and neatly printed signs.

"The toughest job is to make it look great. We don't want a junk store," Lund says.

"We get a real spectrum of people. Not just the guy on his last dime," says sales manager Steve Buck.

Some strange items, such as a wicker casket and a gold tooth, have shown up at Deseret Industries. But everything has a home, Lund says. The casket sold as a planter, and the gold in the tooth brought in $40.

Deseret store may come to Twin Falls

BURLEY — Deseret Industries is considering Twin Falls as the possible site of a satellite thrift store.

Several Mormon leaders from Twin Falls and Jerome have requested a store in Twin Falls, says Marion Lund, the general manager of Deseret Industries in Burley.

There is "potential" for expanding into Twin Falls, although no decision has been made by church officials in Salt Lake City, Lund says. He says a decision may be made soon.

A Twin Falls outlet would not be as large as the Burley store, he says. There probably would be some cleaning work done at the Twin Falls shop, but many items would be brought from the larger Burley plant, he says.

"There are a lot of handicapped people that need training and employment (in Twin Falls), a lot of non-church members."

Publishing industry finds that 'religion' helps during recession

By BILL BELL
New York Daily News

Verily, it is the greatest story ever sold.

And the tougher times get, the fatter religious publishers grow. That's why Bible salesmen brag that they sell a recession-proof product. In hard times, religious interests grow keener, and this, combined with the born-again boom and the rise of the religious New Right, makes religious publishing a potent industry.

Currently, about one of every six books sold in the United States falls into the religious, spiritual or inspirational categories, and retail sales are now approaching $700 million a year.

In addition, works of pop-religious fiction — "The Vicar of Christ," for example — often pop up on secular best-seller lists. But this is not what religious publishers are talking about when they talk shop.

They are talking about books written by authors with a specific Christian or religious viewpoint. For example, evangelist Billy Graham, whose "Angels" broke out of the religious market to hit secular best-seller lists. Or Watergate figure Charles Colson, whose best-selling "Born Again" is the latest "crossover" religious blockbuster.

"The Gospel According to Peanuts" was a religious book. So was "How to Win Friends and Influence People," the Norman Vincent Peale giant that has sold more than 15 million copies so far. So was, to the surprise of many feminists, "Total Woman," which Marabel Morgan wrote as a guide to keeping husbands happy.

It is a staggeringly varied mix that includes among its current or recent top-selling authors Jerry Falwell, Hans Kung, Andrew Greeley (his best-selling "The Cardinal Sins" is fiction, however, and not considered "religious" by purists), Pat Boone, Phyllis Schlafly, Art Linkletter, Anita Bryant and Malcolm Muggeridge. Among celebrities with upcoming religious books is Shirlee Monty, a former Miss America and born-again Christian.

Many of the titles, however, never show on the best-seller list compiled by the Christian Booksellers Association, which swears that its monthly survey of 50 of the country's 5,500 religious bookstores is an accurate guide to what the faithful are buying. For one thing, its best-sellers are counted in the tens of thousands, and many religious books never sell more than a few thousand.

While it is a thriving industry, the mixed blessing is that some of the most successful books often come out of left field. This makes it hard to budget, promote or plan.

One can't-miss example: Good News Publishers in Westchester, Ill., is spending $100,000 on advertising and sending author Francis Schaeffer on a nationwide tour to plug his "A Christian Manifesto." He has more than 3 million copies of earlier books in print, and this one looks like another winner.

On the other hand, "Fundamentalist Phenomenon," edited by the Rev. Jerry Falwell and published by Doubleday & Co., has not sold as briskly as the industry predicted. A backlash against the Moral Majority may be the reason, but nobody can say for sure.

There are between 275 and 300 religious publishing houses in the country, but only 80 to 100 are market heavies. One of them, Thomas Nelson Inc. of Nashville, the country's largest publisher of Bibles, has just purchased Dodd, Mead, the New York-based publisher of Winston Churchill and Agatha Christie.

The latest religious-books guide published by R.R. Bowker Co. of Ann Arbor, Mich., lists more than 50,000 titles — and those are only current books. More than 8,000 additional titles are scheduled this year.

All this has lured major secular houses into the action. Dell Publishing Co. already is beating the drums for "Holy Blood, Holy Grail," a controversial investigation of the life of Christ, based on parchments found in a French church 90 years ago.

For five months, the top hardcover seller on the Christian Bookseller list has been "Improving Your Serve," which is not about tennis, and No. 2, after 21 months on the list, is "The Christian Mother Goose Book."

The top paperback seller is "When Your Money Fails," which is not about money management. "Dare to Discipline," a parent-child guide by James Dobson, has sold more than 1 million copies and stands at No. 2 after 17 months. On the list for two years, and still No. 3, is "The Late Great Planet Earth," which was a huge secular best-seller by Hal Lindsey.

The runaway success is Dobson, who is not an ordained minister but a California clinical psychologist who has written seven books. Six of them are currently on the hardback and paperback lists, with the longest running "The Strong Willed Child," the No. 3 hardback after 23 months on the list. His seventh, "Emotions: Can You Trust Them?" had a first press run of 150,000 copies.

Bibles are the biggest sellers year in, year out, and one version, "The Living Bible," has sold more than 25 million copies (at $10.95 and up) since its introduction 10 years ago. Yet, it ranks only fourth on the current Bible best-seller list; the most popular is still the King James version, first published in 1611.

So with so many people buying so many religious books, why aren't more of them showing up on the secular best-selling lists?

"We poll only general bookstores," says Daisy Maryles of Publishers Weekly, the book trade journal. "We do not poll religious or specialty bookstores. However, if a book breaks out of the religious market, we'll list it." Such was the case with "The Living Bible," which made it to No. 1 on the secular non-fiction list, and stayed there for more than a year.

In any case, religious sales are booming along at a rate that makes almost everyone on Publishers Row a true believer.

Pope will visit Portugal and Britain

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John Paul II, restored to robust health after last year's assassination attempt, visits Portugal and Britain next month — the first of four trips to European nations to be made by the end of the year.

The pope's trips to Portugal on May 12-15 and Britain on May 28-June 2, are the only so far confirmed by the Vatican, but the pope has accepted invitations to visit Switzerland during the summer and Spain, probably in October.

Polish authorities have said John Paul still is welcome to make his second trip to his native country since becoming pope. But the visit has been thrown into doubt because of the pope's displeasure over martial law.

The highlight of the pope's trip to Portugal is to be a visit to the Roman Catholic shrine of Fatima, where he will give thanks for surviving the attempt on his life at the Vatican's St. Peter's Square exactly a year earlier.

Fátima, 70 miles north of Lisbon, is the site where Roman Catholics believe the Virgin Mary appeared miraculously to three shepherd children in 1917. John Paul repeatedly has offered thanks to Mary for his survival.

Religious texts also selling well in Twin Falls

TWIN FALLS — As the nation goes, so goes Twin Falls, at least when it comes to interest in religious books.

In Twin Falls, the apparent tradition of turning to religious texts when times are tough is alive and well, says Dave Frazier, who manages The Christian Bookstore at the Blue Lakes Mall. Whether they're caught in economic turmoil or apprehensive about the threat of a war, people find a special comfort in inspirational literature, according to Frazier, who has concerns about the trend.

"I think it's a sad comment on humanity," he says. "God's really nice during the good times, too. People should try him."

Frazier and Mary Hicks, the manager of Magic Valley Christian Supply off Main Avenue North, say that overall, Twin Falls is about average in terms of the interest in religious literature.

Interest has risen somewhat during the last few years, says Hicks, and both booksellers say that inspirational books about family life are enjoying special popularity. Books about the cradle-to-college rearing of children abound, as do volumes about marital happiness.

Hicks says scripture-based books concerning sex education are popular, and she attributes that to the public schools' approach to the subject. In the classroom, children are instructed about the facts of sex, but not the moral side, she says. Consequently, parents are turning to religious bookstores for literature that addresses sex "as God intended it to be," she says.

Hicks says that in general, authors of spiritual books are taking a more in-depth approach to writing about topics of interest to Christians.

"The trend is toward a more in-depth look at Christianity, and a deeper walk with Christ," she says. "We're selling more books on prophecy, and more of the full-gospel type of books."

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Today's hand was defended by Jim Chew of Tulsa and Mark Lair of Canyon, Texas, in a recent Swiss team match.

We don't approve of Jim's double of four spades, but he had a plan which was to lead his ace of diamonds and then try to put his partner in with the jack of hearts to get a diamond ruff.

So Jim led his ace of diamonds. Mark followed with the deuce and now Jim began to worry. Suppose South held the jack of hearts? Why give declarer an overtrick? Jim saw an extra chance.

At trick two he led his three of clubs. Dummy's ace took the trick. A spade was led and Jim was in with the ace.

He cashed a top heart and led a second club. Mark ruffed and led back a diamond for Jim to ruff to set declarer two tricks.

Was Jim certain that Mark's deuce of clubs had been a singleton? Yes, he was!

It wasn't a question of Mark playing the deuce of clubs very quickly. It was a matter of a well-known defensive convention used by practically all experts. In such situations third hand will always play the higher of two unimportant spot cards if he has a doubleton. Hence Mark's deuce was surely his only club.

What if Mark's singleton club had been the eight? We are afraid that Jim would have underled his high hearts and given South his contract and an overtrick.
